Hungary Continues To Plead For U.N. Aid Against Soviet

Kremlin Horde Seals Border

Fear Of New Russian Crackdown Mounting

BUDAPEST (AP)—Embattled Hungary continued to plead for United Nations help today as Soviet armored hordes thrust westward from Budapest in an effort to close off her frontier with Austria.

Premier Imre Nagy sent his second appeal in two days to the U. N. urging action on his request the world body guarantee Hungarian independence.

The Western powers strove to whip into shape a proposal supporting Hungary's demand for withdrawal of Soviet troops for presentation to a Security Council session this afternoon.

Austria border points reported the Hungarian frontier had once more been sealed off. No travelers were allowed to cross from either side. The Russians held dozens of Americans and other foreigners in frontier villages as they tried to return to Vienna from Budapest.

FEARS OF a general Soviet crackdown were reported spreading to Poland and throughout the satellite area. In East Germany, Premier Otto Grotewohl declared Soviet troops do not intend to leave that country. He appealed to the population to remain loyal in the face of mushrooming anti-Russian student agitation.

Nagy has fired off three protests to the Soviet embassy complaining about troops movements in revolt-ravaged Hungary and charging that Russian troops had occupied rail installations and encircled Budapest.

When fresh Soviet forces were reported moving into Hungary three days ago, the Soviet ambassador told Nagy's government the movements were part of a regrouping in Hungary.

Unconfirmed reports circulated that Hungary and Russia agreed on a mixed armistice commission to arrange for troop withdrawals.

Deputy Defense Minister Maj. Gen. Pal Maleter told newsmen negotiations were begun Wednesday with Soviet Deputy Premier A. I. Mikoyan.

Maleter, one of the heroes of the Hungarian rebellion, said Mikoyan told State Affairs Minister Zoltan Tildy that troops not stationed in Hungary on the basis of the Warsaw military pact would be pulled out.

The Hungarian government announced Thursday it was pulling out of the Soviet-sponsored Warsaw alliance of eastern Europe and placing the country under U. N. protection.

Boy, 14, Given Life Sentence

UPPER MARLBORO, Md. (AP)—A boy, 14, was carried from a courtroom Friday night to begin serving a life term for the slaying of a school teacher.

A jury of three women and nine men deliberated one hour and 11 minutes before announcing its decision convicting Billy Ray Prevatte of first degree murder.

Judge J. Dudley Digges almost immediately pronounced sentence. The boy took it calmly at first, then sagged to a table and had to be carried from the room.

Prevatte had pleaded innocent by reason of insanity in the slaying of Fraser M. Cameron, a teacher at Maryland Park junior high school where the shooting took place last May 4.

Oklahoma Town Hails Will Rogers

CLAREMORE, Okla. (AP)—The memory of Will Rogers still lives on in this northeast Oklahoma town and throughout his native Oklahoma although it was 21 years ago he met tragic death in a plane crash.

Sunday is the 77th anniversary of his birth, but this year's main celebration is today. Twenty-nine high school bands and some 3,000 persons will parade before assembling at the Will Rogers Memorial on the edge of the city.

West Seeking U. N. Action Against Soviet In Hungary

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y. (AP)—The Western powers worked today to forge a Security Council proposal that would support Hungary's avowed neutrality and bolster its demand for withdrawal of Soviet troops.

They hoped to finish a resolution in time to submit it to a third urgent council session on the Hungarian situation this afternoon.

Although a Soviet veto was considered certain, a Security Council deadlock would permit transferring the debate to the General Assembly where the veto does not prevail. The assembly is now sitting in emergency session on the Middle East crisis.

Hungarian Premier Imre Nagy, in his second U. N. appeal in two days, asked the Security Council to order immediate negotiations for withdrawal of Russian troops from Hungary. He asked the U. N. to call for April great powers to recognize Hungary's neutrality.

Nagy's second message was

Ohio Farming Land Prices Still Booming

WASHINGTON (AP)—Whatever the Ohio farmer's income, government economists say his land has been booming in price.

The dollar value of his farm land, the Agriculture Department reports, has jumped 8 per cent in the last year.

This Ohio farm land boom has been going on at least since 1951, the report says. It estimates the average value of an acre of Ohio farm land has risen from $163.65 in 1951 to $206.72 this year.

Thus, in five years, the value of the land is up around 26 per cent. The boom, of course, is not confined to Ohio. It is nationwide.

But the Ohio price rise has been greater than in most states. For example, the 8 per cent increase last year compares with an average of 3 per cent for the nation.

The increase is attributed to several factors. The department says:

"Population is increasing, but our farm land is limited. Thus, the prospect of a growing population is believed to assure a slow but steady increase in the price of farm land."

The government economists find, too, that in certain areas one group of people is pushing the price up: The city dwellers and "parttime farmers."

On this point, the report says: "Unlike the 'back to the farm' movement of the 1930s, which had its origin in unemployment and insecurity, the current interest of city people in farms and rural residences grows out of the general upsurge in population growth."

Asian-African Bloc In U. N. Seeks Protection For Egypt

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y. (AP)—The big Asian-African group of U. N. delegations increased its pressure today to get Britain, France and Israel to cease hostilities against Egypt.

The 23-nation group, in a memorandum to U. N. Secretary General Dag Hammarskjold, was reported to be urging that the General Assembly exert new and stronger efforts to stop their military actions.

Diplomatic sources said the memorandum was drawn up Friday night and taken to Hammarskjold by the chairman, Djafar Abdoh of Iran. It backed up a U. S. resolution the assembly adopted 64-5 Friday in an unprecedented emergency special session.

Egypt accepted it with the condition that she "could not implement the resolution in case attacking armies continue their aggression."

Eden Rejects United Nations Call For Peace

British Chief Says France Agrees To Stab Against Egypt

LONDON (AP)—Prime Minister Eden today rejected the United Nations call for an immediate cease-fire in Egypt. Eden said France also would not comply.

Eden rejected the U. N. call in a statement before a divided House of Commons. A crowd of several hundred persons stood outside in Parliament Square, booed the prime minister when he entered the house to make the statement.

There were demands from opponents of Eden's course that he resign. Tonight Eden will defend his course in a nationwide radio and television talk to the British public already widely divided on the Middle East action.

Eden said Britain and France would be "most willing" to stop military actions as soon as three conditions are met. He listed the conditions as:

"First, that both the Egyptian and Israeli governments agree to a U. N. force to keep the peace."

"SECONDLY, that the United Nations decide to constitute and maintain such a force until an Arab-Israeli peace settlement is reached and until satisfactory arrangements have been agreed to the Suez Canal, both agreements to be guaranteed by the United Nations."

"Thirdly, in the meantime until the United Nations force is constituted, both combatants agree to accept forthwith limited detachments of Anglo-French troops to be stationed between the combatants."

Eden said the substance of his statement had been communicated.

The council overrode a Russian attempt to block debate on the Hungarian issue. Only the Soviet Union voted against placing the question on the agenda.

Soviet Ambassador Arkady A. Sobolev accused the three Western powers of attempting to throw up a smokescreen to divert attention from British-French military action in Egypt.

He said he was "alarmed" the United States would join such a move. Sobolev said the report of increased Soviet troops movements in Hungary and the premier's statements were "completely unfounded."

He accused "Fascist" elements in countries west of Hungary of fanning counter-revolutionary hostilities with arms and other aid.

Nixon Claims U. N. Backing Ike's Policies

ATHENS (AP)—Vice President Nixon told Ohio audiences today that the United Nations has given the Middle East policies of the Eisenhower administration "a world wide vote of confidence" by approving the United States cease-fire resolution 64-5.

Nixon said the United Nations action had given "the lie" to what he termed a "preposterous" charge by Adlai Stevenson that the United States "is standing alone in an unfriendly world."

"The significance of what has happened in the last few days," said Nixon, "is this: For the first time in history we have shown independence of Anglo-French policies toward Asia and Africa which seemed to us to reflect the colonial tradition. That declaration of independence has had an electrifying effect throughout the world, and will continue to have."

He said that before this "declaration" nations in Asia and Africa "have always felt that we would, whenever the pressure was on, side with the policies of the British and French governments in relation to the once colonial areas."

Stevenson said Thursday night that Middle East hostilities were the result of "abysmal" and "catastrophic" failure by the foreign policy of the Eisenhower administration.

Stevenson's statements, Nixon said, were "simply the last wild swings of man who knows he is going down to certain defeat."

"Force is wrong when it is used by our enemies and it is just as wrong when it is declared by our friends," Nixon declared.

Instead of making a stop at Cairo, the plane will stop at Istanbul, Karachi, Calcutta, Bangkok and Singapore.

Mid-East Said Approaching Critical Stage

WASHINGTON (AP)—The undeclared war in the Middle East is now entering what U. S. officials consider to be its most crucial stage.

If Britain, France and Israel are to avoid more serious repercussions for themselves, the belief here is they must bring their operation to a successful conclusion in a relatively short time, perhaps a week or 10 days.

A successful conclusion from their point of view presumably means a quick and effective occupation of key points along the Suez Canal, the toppling or fatal weakening of President Gamal Abdel Nasser's government in Egypt and the stabilization of the Israeli-Egyptian military situation without major complications from other Arab states.

There is no certainty here—in fact there is very little confidence at this time—that such a conclusion of the British-French-Israeli undertaking can be achieved.

If it is not, some of the worst fears of top U. S. government leaders about disastrous results for the whole undertaking are likely, in their view, to be realized.

These fears include the possibility of widespread Arab uprisings throughout North Africa and the Middle East, the rallying of several Arab states to Egypt, sabotage to oil installations and further injury to relations between the United States and Britain and France.

Ike Keeping Close Watch On Europe

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Eisenhower stuck to his desk today, keeping his calendar clear for top-level conferences on the confused situations abroad.

Press Secretary James C. Hagerty said Eisenhower would consult with Secretary of State Dulles again today on possible American moves to follow up the U. N. General Assembly resolution calling for a cease-fire in Egypt.

Dulles told reporters as he left the White House late Friday that such moves are under consideration. He declined to specify the possible actions.

While Dulles was still with the President, Hagerty announced Eisenhower was offering $20 million worth of food and medical supplies for relief purposes in revolt-torn Hungary.

The offer included surplus U. S. foodstuffs worth $15 million, with the remainder in fats, oils and medical supplies.

Efforts will be directed toward making the supplies available in time for relief of the suffering expected with the onslaught of winter weather.

Adlai Offers 4-Point Plan To 'Strike Blow For Peace'

CHICAGO (AP)—Adlai E. Stevenson has offered a four-point program for ending hostilities in the Middle East.

The Democratic standard bearer was elated over his reception in Detroit Friday night where he first offered his proposals to "stop the war and strike a blow for peace."

The audience, which filled Detroit's Fox Theatre's 5,500 seats, jammed the aisles with 2,000 standees and stood on the sidewalks outside, screamed and applauded with fervor.

In his talk, Stevenson said President Eisenhower "wants to silence discussion" of his foreign policy "failure."

The "lack of principle" in our foreign policy, Stevenson said, "has led directly to the present catastrophe in the Middle East and the breakdown of the Western alliance."

Stevenson proposed restoration of a "sense of unified purpose among the free nations," and the rebuilding of the alliance with Great Britain and France "upon which the faith of all free men depends."

Then, he suggested that this country formulate a "common policy for the Middle East" calling for:

1. Restoration of "security" along the frontiers dividing Israel and her Arab neighbors.
2. "One root of all the trouble in the Middle East is that Israel's neighbors have denied her right to exist and have engaged in continued hostility and provocation against her," he said. "This must stop."
3. Insistence that passage of ships through the Suez Canal is a matter of "international concern" and that "no single country and especially no single man can willfully sever the lifeline of Europe and Asia."
4. The launching of an all-out attack with friendly nations "on the problem of resettling the 900,000 Arab refugees who now live in misery and hopelessness."
5. Presentation with other nations of a program to "improve economic conditions in the Middle East for the benefit of the people and not just to serve political purposes."

Egypt Target Of Invasion By Thousands

Israel Fears Trouble From Arab Neighbors On Her East Border

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Fears mounted today that the entire Middle East could become engulfed in war.

Tens of thousands of British and French troops are expected within hours to start an invasion against Egypt. At the same time, Israel, after pushing back some 20,000 Egyptian troops in the Sinai Peninsula, reported it faced a new menace from the east.

Radio Israel said fresh Arab forces, pledged to answer any call from Egypt's President Nasser for aid, were reported moving in Jordan. However, the troop arrival was denied in Amman, Jordan's capital.

The Iraqi government today confirmed that its troops had arrived in Jordan. However, the troop arrival was denied in Amman, Jordan's capital.

A Western diplomat in Jordan said fighting might break out on the 400-mile Israel-Jordan frontier "within 48 hours, if not sooner."

Israel's eastern border has been quiet in the five days that Israeli troops moved against Egyptian defenders in the Sinai Peninsula's sandy wastes.

JORDAN'S MINISTER of state, Abdullah Rimawi, declared in Amman "there is a 50-50 chance that Israel will launch an attack against Jordan."

The British and French pressed their invasion plans after flatly rejecting a United Nations demand for peace.

A French military spokesman said the allied ground forces would have as their first task the opening of the Suez Canal. He charged the Egyptians sabotaged the waterway by sinking six ships in it. The Egyptians have asserted that French-British air action blocked the canal.

Prime Minister Eden, in rejecting the demand by 64 members of the United Nations for an immediate cease-fire, asserted that "there must be a continuation of the action."

Warplanes of the combined British-French assault force pounded Egyptian military potential in final preparation for the assault by amphibious forces and paratroopers.

The British-French command on Cyprus today reported the first loss of a plane in their air offensive. A communication said one Royal Air Force Venom fighter failed to return from a mission.

The French defense ministry said the British-French air forces have completed softening-up attacks on Egypt and that all was set for the leap.

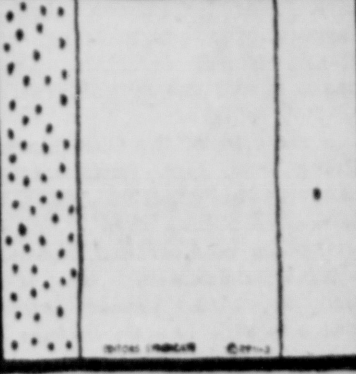

"A few hours from now British and French troops will be occupying territory in the canal zone," said a junior minister in the British cabinet late Friday.

British-French fleets were reported to be in the area.

WASHINGTON (AP)—The undeclared war in the Middle East is now entering what U. S. officials consider to be its most crucial stage.

If Britain, France and Israel are to avoid more serious repercussions for themselves, the belief here is they must bring their operation to a successful conclusion in a relatively short time, perhaps a week or 10 days.

A successful conclusion from their point of view presumably means a quick and effective occupation of key points along the Suez Canal, the toppling or fatal weakening of President Gamal Abdel Nasser's government in Egypt and the stabilization of the Israeli-Egyptian military situation without major complications from other Arab states.

There is no certainty here—in fact there is very little confidence at this time—that such a conclusion of the British-French-Israeli undertaking can be achieved.

If it is not, some of the worst fears of top U. S. government leaders about disastrous results for the whole undertaking are likely, in their view, to be realized.

These fears include the possibility of widespread Arab uprisings throughout North Africa and the Middle East, the rallying of several Arab states to Egypt, sabotage to oil installations and further injury to relations between the United States and Britain and France.

Ike Keeping Close Watch On Europe

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Eisenhower stuck to his desk today, keeping his calendar clear for top-level conferences on the confused situations abroad.

Press Secretary James C. Hagerty said Eisenhower would consult with Secretary of State Dulles again today on possible American moves to follow up the U. N. General Assembly resolution calling for a cease-fire in Egypt.

Dulles told reporters as he left the White House late Friday that such moves are under consideration. He declined to specify the possible actions.

While Dulles was still with the President, Hagerty announced Eisenhower was offering $20 million worth of food and medical supplies for relief purposes in revolt-torn Hungary.

The offer included surplus U. S. foodstuffs worth $15 million, with the remainder in fats, oils and medical supplies.

Efforts will be directed toward making the supplies available in time for relief of the suffering expected with the onslaught of winter weather.

Adlai Offers 4-Point Plan To 'Strike Blow For Peace'

CHICAGO (AP)—Adlai E. Stevenson has offered a four-point program for ending hostilities in the Middle East.

The Democratic standard bearer was elated over his reception in Detroit Friday night where he first offered his proposals to "stop the war and strike a blow for peace."

The audience, which filled Detroit's Fox Theatre's 5,500 seats, jammed the aisles with 2,000 standees and stood on the sidewalks outside, screamed and applauded with fervor.

In his talk, Stevenson said President Eisenhower "wants to silence discussion" of his foreign policy "failure."

The "lack of principle" in our foreign policy, Stevenson said, "has led directly to the present catastrophe in the Middle East and the breakdown of the Western alliance."

Stevenson proposed restoration of a "sense of unified purpose among the free nations," and the rebuilding of the alliance with Great Britain and France "upon which the faith of all free men depends."

Then, he suggested that this country formulate a "common pol-

Israel Fears Trouble From Arab Neighbors On Her East Border

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Fears mounted today that the entire Middle East could become engulfed in war.

Tens of thousands of British and French troops are expected within hours to start an invasion against Egypt. At the same time, Israel, after pushing back some 20,000 Egyptian troops in the Sinai Peninsula, reported it faced a new menace from the east.

Radio Israel said fresh Arab forces, pledged to answer any call from Egypt's President Nasser for aid, were reported moving in Jordan from Iraq and Syria.

The Iraqi government today confirmed that its troops had arrived in Jordan. However, the troop arrival was denied in Amman, Jordan's capital.

A Western diplomat in Jordan said fighting might break out on the 400-mile Israel-Jordan frontier "within 48 hours, if not sooner."

Israel's eastern border has been quiet in the five days that Israeli troops moved against Egyptian defenders in the Sinai Peninsula's sandy wastes.

JORDAN'S MINISTER of state, Abdullah Rimawi, declared in Amman "there is a 50-50 chance that Israel will launch an attack against Jordan."

The British and French pressed their invasion plans after flatly rejecting a United Nations demand for peace.

A French military spokesman said the allied ground forces would have as their first task the opening of the Suez Canal. He charged the Egyptians sabotaged the waterway by sinking six ships in it. The Egyptians have asserted that French-British air action blocked the canal.

Prime Minister Eden, in rejecting the demand by 64 members of the United Nations for an immediate cease-fire, asserted that "there must be a continuation of the action."

Warplanes of the combined British-French assault force pounded Egyptian military potential in final preparation for the assault by amphibious forces and paratroopers.

The British-French command on Cyprus today reported the first loss of a plane in their air offensive. A communication said one Royal Air Force Venom fighter failed to return from a mission.

The French defense ministry said the British-French air forces have completed softening-up attacks on Egypt and that all was set for the leap.

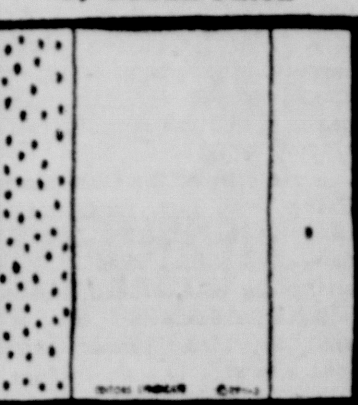

"A few hours from now British and French troops will be occupying territory in the canal zone," said a junior minister in the British cabinet late Friday.

The Me First Party presidential candidate, Sen. ported massed at the northern and southern ends of the Suez.

The purpose of the invasion, the British and French have said, is to protect the canal from the fighting that began Monday night with a two-pronged Israeli drive across the 130-mile-wide Sinai peninsula in the direction of Suez. They said they also sought to halt the fighting and separate the belligerents.

Fighting died down on the peninsula today while Israel kept a nervous eye on Jordan.

An Israeli communique reported the capture of the town of Atur, 155 miles south of Suez on the west coast of the Sinai peninsula.

The Israelis captured the 180-square mile Gaza Strip Friday. They reported the capture of thousands of Egyptian troops and large quantities of arms, vehicles and provisions.

Egypt maintained it was withdrawing from Sinai to mass its forces on the west bank of the Suez Canal in preparation for the impending British-French invasion. But the French communique said pilots who had flown over the area saw Egyptian units moving about in "great confusion" and giving the "impression of a veritable debacle."

British-French headquarters on Cyprus said allied air raids had dealt the Egyptian air force "a crippling blow." The raids have been concentrated on Egyptian airfields.

Bombs knocked out the Cairo radio.

The Syrian government station, relaying messages from Cairo, said the attack on the Egyptian broadcasting station in the Cairo suburb of Abou Zabal killed 100 Egyptians.

The broadcast said 13 British planes were downed by Egypt Friday.

Integration Troubles Show Pattern Lacks Consistency

ATLANTA, GA.—What do the anti-integration riots in Mansfield, Tex., Clinton, Tenn., and Sturgis, Ky., portend for the rest of the South, or particularly the so-called Deep South, where Negro population ratios in so many counties equal or exceed the white population?

Time and circumstances alone hold the complete answer to so broad a question, but the question is one nevertheless which state and local officials, educators, editorial commentators, sociologists and others concerned with racial relations are pondering soberly.

The trouble in Tennessee, Texas and Kentucky, like the earlier Autherine Lucy case in Alabama, has served to etch in stark detail the inflammatory nature of the segregation problem in so many parts of the South.

In the so-called Deep South states, where official state policy is one of attempting to forestall or circumvent any degree whatsoever of racial integration in the schools through any number of new laws or stratagems, the segregationists usually have taken the attitude that there just won't be any integration—at least for a long time to come, maybe a generation.

And they have commonly predicted violence and an end to the public school system if any attempt is made to force racially mixed schools upon them.

EVEN SOME of the more "moderate" Southerners, however, who do not reject the principle of desegregation but who insist the problem, varying greatly from one community to another, must be approached realistically, tend to view the recent outbursts as a grim warning to those who would speed up too recklessly the transition from segregated to mixed schools.

The real significance of the sporadic outbursts of violence is viewed in the Deep South as this: These incidents tend to prove there can be sharp exceptions to the general pattern or concept that the smaller the ratio of Negro population, the easier the transition will be.

For the latest anti-integration mob demonstrations, resulting in the calling out of militia, occurred in areas where the Negro problem as such had been considered to be relatively negligible.

Those familiar with all regions of the South and its people long have been aware of the seemingly paradoxical fact that in some of the counties lying in the Appalachian mountains or its foothills, where the Negro is numerically negligible in the population, the antipathy toward the racial minority sometimes seems greater or harsher than in the Old South or the plantation South.

Kentucky, a border state, began desegregating its schools last year, with 40-odd of 211 districts attaining an integrated situation. In most of the districts, integration did not begin until this year, and school authorities expected no trouble until the Sturgis affair.

The Sturgis trouble came when about 500 miners and farmers formed a mob and turned back nine Negro youths entering the high school in the mining town of about 5,000 population. There are about 310 students enrolled in the previously all-white school. National Guard troops, camped on the school grounds, subsequently escorted the Negro students to their classrooms.

TENNESSEE, too, sometimes is called a border state. Some of its western counties have relatively large Negro populations, but the Negro population ratio is relatively small in the eastern mountain counties. The high schools of Oak Ridge, Tenn., under government control, desegregated last year.

The schools of Anderson county, in which Oak Ridge is situated, were under court order to desegregate this fall. Clinton, where state militiamen had to quell riots, is the county seat. A week of violent mob action was touched off by the admission of a dozen Negroes among the 796 white pupils at Clinton high. The Clinton riots were sparked by professional outside agitators, but the other incidents were local manifestations.

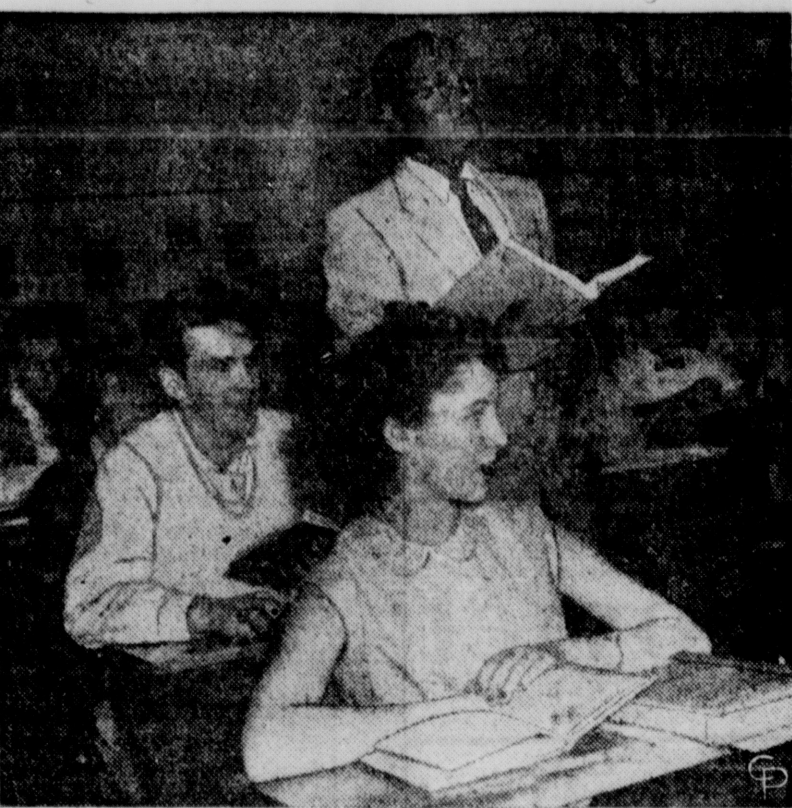

Intentions to comply with the Supreme Court integration decision have been announced—with dates unspecified—in Nashville, Knoxville and Chattanooga, where resistance has increased in recent months. A federal court and a state court have held Tennessee's school segregation laws unconstitutional.

TEXAS is another state with "border" characteristics. Last year some 70 of the state's 1,867 school districts were integrated. All of these districts are in south or West Texas where the Negro population is sparse. Mansfield, where a mob sought to keep Negro students from enrolling, was under a court order to integrate this fall, but no school east of Mansfield has yet been ordered to integrate or has integrated voluntarily.

There are only 12 Negro students in the Mansfield district, which has about 300 white high school students. Efforts of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People to enroll 12 Negro students at the Mansfield high school have been abandoned for the present.

Schools west of Mansfield have integrated smoothly and integration was welcomed by many white leaders. The movement now has reached the western edge of east Texas, where resistance to integration is considered to be strong in many districts. Mansfield is 20 miles southeast of Fort Worth.

There has been no dent in the public school patterns in Virginia, North Carolina, Georgia, Florida, Mississippi and Louisiana. Any showdown may come first in Virginia, where several suits against school boards are pending.

Williamsport and Monroe high schools, getting an early start on the coming basketball season, held a practice game last night at Williamsport, with the Deercreek cagers posting a 60 to 45 win.

The Williamsport crew, holding a 27 to 20 halftime lead, went on to rack up 33 more points in the second half to win going away.

Stonerock, playing center, was high man for the winners with 18 points.

Monroe's Haller took game scoring honors with 19 points on seven goals and five free throws.

DEERCREEK guard Morgan contributed 12 points for the winners' cause and Hix came through with 12 for the losers.

Monroe won the reserve game in a 37 to 34 thriller. Bigam's 15 points was high for the reserve winners. Humphrey collected 12 markers for the Williamsport reserves.

The Williamsport basketballers are scheduled to meet Rushville Friday in another practice tilt.

CHS Seniors Honored In Band Program

Circleville High School's marching band, directed by Truman Eberly and led by Susan Stocklen, put the finishing touches on a successful grid entertainment season at the Circleville-Delaware homecoming football game last night.

Making their final home football appearance, the Red and Black bandmen paid special tribute to all senior band members.

Each senior musician was introduced to a large crowd of homecoming fans by game announcer Boyd Stout. The honored seniors moved through a make-believe hour glass, outlined by other band members, who played "Auld Lang Syne" as a final salute to those departing.

The fast-stepping musicians also took part in pre-game ceremonies when Homecoming Queen Judy Grooms and her court was introduced to the spectators. The attendants were Anne Steele and Martha Smith.

THE EVENING program was concluded following the singing and playing of Circleville's alma mater, "The Red and Black."

The Delaware High School band was also on hand to help celebrate the special homecoming activities.

CO-OP COED DORMITORY

Co-Operative Living Girls at Syracuse Cut Costs, Make College Possibility

Household chores, from cooking to cleaning, are done in turn by each Haft dormitory resident. Today's schedule calls for Jacqueline Rudolph of Troy, N. Y., to do the mopping.

By Central Press
SYRACUSE, N. Y.—The cookbook that helped grandmother get at a man's heartstrings is helping the modern miss get through college on a shoestring.

At Syracuse university, for example, coeds who can't afford a college education are turning to the modern cookbook where they find not only a variety of tasty recipes but also a partial solution to their financial problems.

With a recipe book in one hand and a dustpan in the other, a group of energetic young women at Syracuse university are houseworking their way through college under a system of co-operative living. What's more they're doing it in a setting as up-to-date as a rambling ranch type home.

The setting for this new venture in modern co-operative living is Syracuse university's recently completed Morris W. Haft dormitory for women. This dormitory represents a major step taken by university officials to land students a financial helping hand through special building construction designed to lower living costs.

"In view of the mounting cost of a college education, building dormitories like Haft is one way universities can help students help themselves," said F. Gordon Smith, Syracuse university vice president who has been supervising the university's $15 million post-war building and development program.

THE GROUP of 26 collegiate women who live in Haft dormitory spend time to save money. Every school year they save $50 on room and $250 on board compared to the lowest-priced campus housing. This saving makes the difference to many of the girls of going or not going to college.

How much time must a coed spend each day on housework to realize this saving? Just one hour, that's all. However, in these 60 minutes the 26 Haft girls execute almost two dozen domestic chores. They plan menus, cook meals, polish furniture, wash and dry dishes, empty waste baskets, sweep porches, make beds and mop floors.

No dishpan hands, no housemaid's knee for Haft girls, thanks to the dormitory's architects, who did some careful planning.

Twenty-six cooks do sometimes spoil the broth. However, as head resident Mrs. Josephine Hartley reasons, "We expect a few kitchen capers along with the cooking, especially when art, drama, engineering and music students gather 'round the range."

106-YEAR-OLD OHIOAN STILL LIKES POLITICS

By MELVA MCCUDDY

SPRINGFIELD, O.—"A plain life in the fear of the Lord" is Mrs. Mary Archer's formula for good living. She should know, for Mrs. Archer has attained the magnificent age of 106 years.

A resident of the Ohio Masonic Home here, Mrs. Archer recalls her trip to America 102 years ago—on a sailing vessel from her birthplace in Aberdeen, Scotland. While celebrating her latest birthday, Mrs. Archer revealed that she still has an intense interest in politics. In fact, she still treasures a card and picture which President Eisenhower sent her after the last presidential election.

Almost blind and confined to her wheel chair, Mrs. Archer uses her most useful sense, hearing, to enjoy several hours of radio listening every day—until about 9 or 10 p. m.

Being a native Scotswoman, she still has quite a few Scottish phrases in her conversation. She recalled that a "Heelander band of kilties" played for her 100th birthday.

She laughed about her mother's reaction to America when they first arrived. "I dinna like it here. Take me hame," her mother said.

Mrs. Archer's husband, Joseph H., died in 1912. Mrs. Archer has been a resident of the Ohio Masonic Home since 1942. When asked if she planned or hoped to be here for her 107th birthday next year, she replied, "I'll thank God if I make it until next Friday."

Mrs. Mary Archer

However, she said similar things at her 105th birthday celebration. And with her own dry humor, she has been making such remarks regularly since her 100th birthday.

The prime minister said he had good reason to believe that Australia and New Zealand, both members of the British Commonwealth, would welcome his words.

Eden spoke at the first Saturday session of the House of Commons since 1949. The emergency session was called to hear his reply to the U. N. General Assembly cease-fire resolution.

Mounted and foot police patrolled the precincts of parliament. As Eden spoke, the crowd outside grew to some thousands.

Eden first reiterated a previous statement that the first and most urgent task of British and French troops is to separate the Israeli and Egyptian armies and stabilize the position.

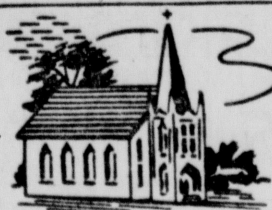

He told the House that, in a speech Wednesday, he had said Britain would be happy to turn over to the United Nations "the physical task" of keeping peace after British-French military strength "stabilized" matters.

'Fishers Of Men' Theme Basis Of Sermon For Presbyterians

"Come ye after me, and I will make you to become fishers of men."

These are the words of our Lord which will find emphasis in the 10:30 worship hour on Sunday morning at the Presbyterian Church. They are found in the Gospel of St. Matthew, chapter 4.

The outcome of this invitation was, that His Apostles forsook their nets and their personal affairs and followed Jesus and did become "fishers of men," bringing many to Him who said, "I will never leave thee nor forsake thee."

The Rev. Donald Mitchell will develop this text in the theme by saying: "We Are Not Alone."

"With rulers of the nations in such dangerous mood as we find them today and with disasters reaching often into the very privacy of our homes, we need to redirect our thinking toward the divine purpose among the inhabitants of Earth."

"We must forsake selfish desires and schemes for power, and place our trust in One who does not forsake those who pursue His purpose and His way. For these things lead unerringly unto peace and to righteousness and to life that does not end with time."

The Junior Choir will sing their anthem, "Adoration," which is arranged from an ancient Hebrew melody used in the ritual for the festival of lights. Mrs. Fred Tamany is the director of the Choir.

The Choir will enter the sanctuary singing the Processional Hymn, "Fairest Lord Jesus, Ruler of All Nations." Other hymns to be sung during the worship are: "Let the whole Creation cry, Glory to the Lord on high" and "Be Thou My Vision."

At the organ, Mrs. Theodore L. Huston will play "Scherzo" from Sonata in C Minor, "Chanson Matinale," and the Huhn Festival March.

Special prayers for penitence, pardon and peace among the nations will be offered, and for God's guidance upon the people of this nation in the right use of franchise.

Following the worship, the Church Committee on History will meet for a brief discussion. Milton Patterson is committee chairman. The Committee on Nominations will also meet.

In the evening, the Westminster Fellowship Youth Group will meet in the Chapel for devotions.

Church Of Christ Announces Topic

The Sunday sermon subject announced for the Church of Christ is "New Testament Baptism."

The following comments on this lesson are given by Charles Cochran:

"There are many honest and sincere souls confused on the subject of baptism. This, however, is not the fault of the Bible, but rather the result of men speaking by opinion. To find out what God wants us to know about baptism we must go to the New Testament scriptures, as baptism is a New Testament subject."

"A man once said: 'If my mind were unsettled in regard to baptism, I would take this course—I would take my New Testament, and, beginning at the first chapter of Matthew I would read it all the way through, watching for that word 'baptism' and everywhere I found it, I would examine carefully the passage in which I found it, and learn all I could about it; and when I got through I would put all of this together, and I would make up my mind on the whole subject of baptism that way. Then I would feel sure that it was God teaching me, and that He would approve my decision.' Certainly one could not go wrong in honestly pursuing such a course on any Bible subject."

"In considering the subject of baptism three important questions are involved:

- (1) What is the action of baptism.
- (2) Who are proper subjects,
- (3) What is its design?

In answering these questions we learn that (1) baptism is a burial in water (Rom. 6:3-4; Col. 2:12; Acts 8:36-37); (2) that those are proper subjects for baptism who have been taught (Matt. 28:18-20); who believe (Mk. 16:15-16; Acts 8:37) and have repented of their sins (Acts 2:38); and (3) that baptism is for the remission of sins (Acts 2:38; Mk. 16:15-16; Acts 22:16); to put us into Christ (Rom. 6:3-4; Gal. 3:26-27; 1 Cor. 12:13); and is the answer of a good conscience toward God (1 Pet. 3:21)."

'Fishers Of Men' Theme Basis Of Sermon For Presbyterians

"Come ye after me, and I will make you to become fishers of men."

These are the words of our Lord which will find emphasis in the 10:30 worship hour on Sunday morning at the Presbyterian Church. They are found in the Gospel of St. Matthew, chapter 4.

The outcome of this invitation was, that His Apostles forsook their nets and their personal affairs and followed Jesus and did become "fishers of men," bringing many to Him who said, "I will never leave thee nor forsake thee."

The Rev. Donald Mitchell will develop this text in the theme by saying: "We Are Not Alone." Let's All Go Shopping!

Let's All Go Shopping for ideas and material to add life to our years—while adding years to our lives!

One good method is to use the A, B, C, D's in a dual manner.

First: the "A" stands for advertisements we can use to guide selection; "B" for budget with which one needs to be friendly; "C" for the common sense a consumer needs when marketing for the best advantage for all concerned; and "D" for deciding always to abide by the Basic Seven recommendations when building individual or family menus. Second: we can look at the first four letters of the alphabet in regard to the "natural" vitamin content of our foods. "A" includes the amber foods; "B" the brown foods; "C" the circular or citrus foods; and "D" the deep sea foods. (Of course by the enrichment method a lot of these vitamins are found in foods of any size, shape, or color.)

If one wants to get somewhat "saturated" with the A, B, C, D's while following the Basic Seven, this menu is suggested: liver, baked sweet potatoes, broccoli, celery and carrot strips, whole wheat bread, butter, stewed dried apricots and milk.

In spite of all advertisement, budgeting, common sense and decisions of Basic Seven, housework still has a lot of do-it-over-and-over - and then do the same thing - over - tomorrow - and - the-next-day-and-thenext, and can perhaps add up to more monotony than work!

When the monotony gets too weighty, the homemaker and consumer guide might like to take a thought break and read this "Kitchen Prayer":

"Lord of all pots and pans and things, since I've not time to be a Saint by doing lovely things and watching late with Thee. Or dreaming in the dawn of light, or storming Heaven's gates, Make Me a Saint by getting meals and washing up the plates.

"Warm all the kitchen with Thy love, and light it with Thy peace, Forgive me in all my worrying and make my grumbling cease. Thou who did'st love to give men food, in room or by the sea, Accept this service that I do, I do it unto Thee."

Are you paying tribute to Johnny Appleseed by using the plentiful apples in a variety of nutritious ways? Are you thinking of and consuming your A, B, C, D's daily? Do you know the Basic Seven? And, do you try to sandwich in time for a regular life adding thought break?

Savings Bonds Held In Nation Hit New High

Judge William D. Radcliff, chairman of the Pickaway County savings bonds committee, today reported that the dollar volume of Series E and H Savings Bonds held by individuals throughout the nation reached a new high of $41 billion. Of this amount, $15 billion is in matured E Bonds which continue to draw additional interest under the automatic extension option.

Ohio sales of E and H Bonds for September were just over $22 million, a decrease of 10 percent over the same month a year ago.

Judge Radcliff pointed out that while total sales were down, the sale of Series E Bonds through the automatic payroll savings plan was on the increase.

Over 80 percent of all Ohio companies which employ one hundred or more people now operate the payroll savings plan for the purchase of United States Savings Bonds.

September sales of these two issues in Pickaway County totaled $82,400 in 1956. During the same period in 1955 the sales were $40,810.

One county, Vinton, has already achieved its sales goal for 1956. Otawa, Holmes, Paulding and Harrison counties are well over their ten months goals.

Big Lakes Ship To Cost $7 Million

CLEVELAND (AP)—Columbia Transportation Co., an ore hauling company operated by Oglebay, Norton & Co. of Cleveland, will lease for 25 years the longest and largest vessel on the Great Lakes as soon as it is built.

Costing more than $7 million, the ship will be started next year at the Detroit yard of Great Lakes Engineering Works, for Northwestern Mutual Life Insurance Co. of Milwaukee. By the opening of navigation in 1958 it is to be completed.

Still unnamed, the vessel will be 729 feet long, have a beam of 75 feet, and will be 39 feet deep. At maximum draft, she is to haul 25,000 gross tons of iron ore.

Cafe Operator Held In Slaying

CINCINNATI (AP)—Police have charged Raymond C. Levy, 32, a Cincinnati restaurant operator, with manslaughter in the beating death of a patron, Horace Davis, 31, Thursday.

Investigators said Levy told them he beat the victim with a table leg after Davis menaced him with a knife while being ejected from the restaurant.

COLUMBUS (AP)—Franklin County voters who cannot otherwise get to the polls Tuesday have been offered free transportation by a non-partisan group here.

Clevelanders Finding Life Dull With No Newspapers

CLEVELAND (AP)—Folks in this city have found that life can be on the dull side when there are no local newspapers.

And in the irritation of upset routine they had something in common with their fellow Ohioans in Portsmouth—250 miles away at the opposite end of the state—who have been without telephone service 19 days as a result of a strike.

"Why, Joe was an absolute bear this morning," said housewife Carolyn McCarthy of Cleveland. "He sat down to breakfast and growled that he supposed he'd have to talk to me since he didn't have a paper. All he talked about then was how much he missed the paper."

One of Cleveland's three big dailies is being struck by the Cleveland newspaper guild. The other two are closed because their truck drivers refused to haul newspapers which included the nameplate of the struck paper.

"You know," ventured Cy Es-kins, of North Olmsted, a driver for a suburban bus line, "my passengers looked like they didn't know what to do with themselves this morning."

"Usually, most of them have their noses stuck in the paper all the way downtown. I watched them today in the mirror. They looked at their feet, out the window, up at the ceiling. They acted like they didn't know how to talk to each other. A lot of them went to sleep."

In the Pickwick Restaurant cashier Fay Gieve listened to patron after patron ask, "where's the paper?"

"Ordinary mornings, you see everybody sitting around drinking their coffee and reading their pa-pers," she said. "Today they come in, growl about the paper, gulp their coffee and boom, away they go."

"I miss it too," she added. "I bought a magazine as a substitute."

Mrs. Herman Wearsch of Cleveland said she found one good side to the situation.

"When Herm came home and found out we weren't getting a pa-per, he sat around lost for awhile and then actually asked me if he could take me over to the store or anything," she chuckled.

A neighbor, Mrs. Paul Butts, said she found no such solace.

"I don't know what's on television, the kids acted up during the time they're usually reading the funnies and I had to call the weather bureau to see if it's going to rain," she complained.

Hakon Olsson, a Brooklyn, N. Y., salesman, said he felt as though he was "outside civilization" when he got up in his hotel room and was told there were no papers.

Most newsstands were sold out of papers. At one, the Penn Square Newsstand, the proprietor said people were buying local papers two days old just to have something to read.

One man not at all unhappy at the developments, was Jerry Bowman, news director of radio station WERE.

"We're telling our listeners we've become a '24-hour-on-the-air-newspaper' and really we're just that," said Bowman. "We've got the entire staff mobilized to cover the news, we've boosted the number of newscasts and we're even providing such services as carrying television and movie programs."

Bowman admitted, however, that "we know we've been working, too."

Other radio and television stations in the city likewise were providing expanded news coverage.

Israel Envoy Denies 'Plot' In Attacks

LONDON (AP)—Israel's ambassador to Britain said today his country's military operations against Egypt apparently are coming to a conclusion with the fall of Gaza. He denied any Israeli connection with the British-French attack on Egypt.

Ambassador Eliahu Elath, talking to more than 100 reporters at his embassy, declared "nothing would be more fatal or irresponsible than to advise us to get back to the situation as it was when we started."

Asked if Israel intended to go as far as the Suez Canal, Elath replied:

"No indeed. I do not think that we had any intention of going farther than was necessary."

Elath accused Egypt of repeatedly attacking Israel.

The ambassador said Israel did not strike to take Egyptian territory, or to be a "stooge for anybody, or to take anyone's chestnuts out of the fire."

"We are too proud for that."

Savings Bonds Held In Nation Hit New High

Judge William D. Radcliff, chairman of the Pickaway County savings bonds committee, today reported that the dollar volume of Series E and H Savings Bonds held by individuals throughout the nation reached a new high of $41 billion. Of this amount, $15 billion is in matured E Bonds which continue to draw additional interest under the automatic extension option.

Ohio sales of E and H Bonds for September were just over $22 million, a decrease of 10 percent over the same month a year ago.

Judge Radcliff pointed out that while total sales were down, the sale of Series E Bonds through the automatic payroll savings plan was on the increase.

Over 80 percent of all Ohio companies which employ one hundred or more people now operate the payroll savings plan for the purchase of United States Savings Bonds.

September sales of these two issues in Pickaway County totaled $82,400 in 1956. During the same period in 1955 the sales were $40,810.

One county, Vinton, has already achieved its sales goal for 1956. Ottawa, Holmes, Paulding and Harrison counties are well over their ten months goals.

Landslide Ride Brings Lawsuit

SANTA MONICA, Calif. (P)—Four women who rode a landslide down Santa Monica's Pacific Palisades Aug. 26 are suing the city for a total of $55,000, contending it was the city's land which slid.

Mrs. Maude Hankerson, 64, Mrs. Lucille Glenn 48, Mrs. Eugenie Baughman, 72, and Mrs. Norah K. Hayward, 63, said in their suit that they were injured when a portion of the Palisades Park broke away, dropping them—and nearly 12,000 tons of earth—on the Pacific Coast Highway.

The UCLA medical center reported that Laura Currier died during the operation Friday, Nancy died several hours later.

The girls, born 12 days ago, were joined from neck to abdomen, the medical center said.

Their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Currier of Simi, Calif., have an 18-month-old daughter.

Ohio Elections Apathy Still In Full Flower

Heavy Campaigning
Said Failing To Create
Interest In Voter

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Both parties used their biggest guns in the campaign for Ohio's bloc of 25 electoral votes but didn't make much of a dent in election apathy.

Personal appearances by President Eisenhower and his Democratic rival, Adlai E. Stevenson, drew the biggest Buckeye crowds. Candidates for vice president also were well received. So were stand-out political figures from other states and the nation's capital who lauded national and local candidates.

But Ohio officials predicted that when the votes are counted next Tuesday, the total will be about the same as in the last presidential election four years ago.

Exactly 3,749,828 Ohioans voted in the 1952 general election. Failure to exceed that total substantially this year, they said, would show apathy on the part of voters because of population gains in recent years.

Based on a state-financed census showing a population of just over nine million this year, officials estimated that Ohio has about six million potential voters. The 1952 potential barely exceeded 5,400,000.

Voter registrations required in all or parts of 37 counties this year totaled nearly 3,145,000, compared with 3,072,000 four years ago. Some counties recorded gains but others fell behind 1952 registrations. Cuyahoga County, which accounts for nearly a fifth of Ohio's votes, was among losers.

Political leaders said intensive drives to get eligible voters to the polls might produce some surprises but none looked for startling turnouts, barring unexpected developments.

Ohio interest focused on the presidential and U.S. senatorial campaigns with the gubernatorial race bidding strongly for the spotlight. Some congressional contests were drawing cards.

Republican Vice President Richard M. Nixon and Sen. Estes Kefauver of Tennessee, Stevenson's running-mate, criss-crossed the state in return visits. Like their standard-bearers, they pleaded for election of party aspirants.

Eisenhower urged Ohioans to elect Sen. George H. Bender and GOP congressmen so Republicans could regain control of Congress from Democrats. Stevenson called for election of five-term Gov. Frank J. Lausche to the senate and Michael V. DiSalle of Toledo, former federal price controller, to succeed the governor.

DiSalle's Republican opponent, Atty. Gen. C. William O'Neill, former Ohio House speaker, also got plugs from party luminaries.

Politicians asserted their well-organized drives developed similarities on issues except finances. DiSalle promised to fulfill Ohio's growing needs without new taxes. O'Neill urged a close look at the problems and whatever action is necessary to solve them.

Gubernatorial opponents spoke several times from the same platform but Bender and Lausche only twice. One of those meetings was unscheduled.

Bender said he deserved re-election on his record of Eisenhower administration support. Lausche displayed the political independence that has won him more GOP votes than the Democratic ballots he has alienated by indicating that he might consider voting with Republicans to organize the Senate if he and Eisenhower are elected. U.S. Senate teams are for six years.

Republican leaders expected to hold their 17 congressional seats and possibly gain two of the six held by Democrats. But Democratic leaders seemed confident they would keep their six and pick up two or three from Republicans. Both sides figured farm sentiment might be decisive.

60 Nations Send Students To OSU

COLUMBUS (AP) — Ohio State University reports that 60 nations are represented in the international student enrollment at the university this quarter, with 44 women and 321 men.

Four foreign nations with the largest student representation are India with 38, China 36, Canada 33 and Korea 30.

Ohio Elections Apathy Still In Full Flower

Heavy Campaigning
Said Failing To Create
Interest In Voter

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Both parties used their biggest guns in the campaign for Ohio's bloc of 25 electoral votes but didn't make much of a dent in election apathy.

Personal appearances by President Eisenhower and his Democratic rival, Adlai E. Stevenson, drew the biggest Buckeye crowds. Candidates for vice president also were well received. So were stand-out political figures from other states and the nation's capital who lauded national and local candidates.

But Ohio officials predicted that when the votes are counted next Tuesday, the total will be about the same as in the last presidential election four years ago.

Exactly 3,749,828 Ohioans voted in the 1952 general election. Failure to exceed that total substantially this year, they said, would show apathy on the part of voters because of population gains in recent years.

Based on a state-financed census showing a population of just over nine million this year, officials estimated that Ohio has about six million potential voters. The 1952 potential barely exceeded 5,400,000.

Voter registrations required in all or parts of 37 counties this year totaled nearly 3,145,000, compared with 3,072,000 four years ago. Some counties recorded gains but others fell behind 1952 registrations. Cuyahoga County, which accounts for nearly a fifth of Ohio's votes, was among losers.

Political leaders said intensive drives to get eligible voters to the polls might produce some surprises but none looked for startling turnouts, barring unexpected developments.

Ohio interest focused on the presidential and U.S. senatorial campaigns with the gubernatorial race bidding strongly for the spotlight. Some congressional contests were drawing cards.

Republican Vice President Richard M. Nixon and Sen. Estes Kefauver of Tennessee, Stevenson's running-mate, criss-crossed the state in return visits. Like their standard-bearers, they pleaded for election of party aspirants.

Eisenhower urged Ohioans to elect Sen. George H. Bender and GOP congressmen so Republicans could regain control of Congress from Democrats. Stevenson called for election of five-term Gov. Frank J. Lausche to the senate and Michael V. DiSalle of Toledo, former federal price controller, to succeed the governor.

DiSalle's Republican opponent, Atty. Gen. C. William O'Neill, former Ohio House speaker, also got plugs from party luminaries.

Politicians asserted their well-organized drives developed similarities on issues except finances. DiSalle promised to fulfill Ohio's growing needs without new taxes. O'Neill urged a close look at the problems and whatever action is necessary to solve them.

Gubernatorial opponents spoke several times from the same platform but Bender and Lausche only twice. One of those meetings was unscheduled.

Bender said he deserved re-election on his record of Eisenhower administration support. Lausche displayed the political independence that has won him more GOP votes than the Democratic ballots he has alienated by indicating that he might consider voting with Republicans to organize the Senate if he and Eisenhower are elected. U.S. Senate teams are for six years.

Republican leaders expected to hold their 17 congressional seats and possibly gain two of the six held by Democrats. But Democratic leaders seemed confident they would keep their six and pick up two or three from Republicans. Both sides figured farm sentiment might be decisive.

SUPER ROAD AGENCY?

THE POSSIBILITY that a new federal highway agency may be formed is being talked of in Washington, D. C.

Speculation has arisen since the appointment of Bertram D. Tallamy of New York to the newly-created post of Federal Highway Administrator. Tallamy was formerly head of the New York State Thruway Authority.

The creation of the Federal Highway Administrator post by the recent session of Congress was felt to show congressional doubt that the existing Bureau of Public Roads could handle the huge new $32.5 billion, 13-year highway program in addition to its present duties. Opposition came from state highway officials and highway user organizations.

Now it appears that even with the Tallamy appointment there will be no disturbance of the working arrangements of the bureau with state highway departments.

But there may be some changes in the future, such as transferring the bureau to some new authority.

Sen. Albert Gore, Tennessee Democrat, has talked of creating an independent agency, such as a bipartisan federal highway commission, to handle the entire highway program.

What will be the reaction of state highway departments, or of those who do not want another federal bureau, to this proposal, remains to be seen. It may raise an interesting issue in the coming session of Congress.

REFUSAL OF REASON

SELDOM has free enterprise had such a good case as in its current battle in the Italian parliament over an oil exploration law.

Yet for political reasons a law aimed at giving a virtual oil exploration monopoly to the state-owned group ENI has a good chance of passing. It has already been approved by the lower house and awaits action by the upper house.

On a logical basis the state-owned ENI shouldn't have a chance. For it has had a virtual monopoly for several years, especially in Italy's Po Valley, and has come up with practically no oil.

The free oil companies of the rest of the world are convinced there is oil in Italy and want a chance to explore there. But the dominance of socialist thinking in the Italian parliament has practically ruled out this alternative.

The island of Sicily, off the southwest "toe" of Italy, went about the matter in different fashion. A semi-autonomous part of Italy, the island in 1950 enacted a local oil law encouraging competitive oil exploration. One company has already started heavy production and others have found promising indications of oil and gas.

The tragedy of the proposed legislation is that Italy, with her millions of poor and her stagnant economy, could well use the boost of an important oil find.

OIL PLENTIFUL

GASOLINE prices are weakening in some areas. Refiners and distributors have uncommonly large stocks of the motor fuel, following a Summer of record vacation travel.

This leaves no doubt that U. S. production, plus imports, is more than sufficient for the country's needs. The Suez crisis which once raised the fear that the U. S. would be compelled to step up output to aid Europe, is being teetered along with no current indication that American oil will be needed.

Producing states now find it necessary to decide whether to curtail domestic production further. Texas, the largest producing state—which accounts for nearly 50 per cent of domestic output—has already ordered sharp cutbacks in crude production. It is considering cutting allowances further next month in an effort to bring stocks above ground back to normal.

The domestic oil industry has become efficient in self-regulation to keep prices firm. This regulation is prolonging the life of producing sands. There is little doubt today that petroleum, principal source of energy, will be kept in adequate production until the dawn of the grand new atomic age, when energy will be obtained more cheaply.

George E. Sokolsky's

These Days

On October 6, Konstantin Orlov, commentator in English to North America, on the Moscow Radio, said:

"... Spokesmen for the Republican administration assert that they stand for disarmament, if such measures can be controlled—but why, in that case, do they spurn the Soviet Union's proposal to prohibit by agreement the testing of nuclear weapons which it is easy to keep tabs on, even now, without waiting for any elaborate system of control?"

"To check up on the fulfillment of such an agreement is a simple matter, because instruments can immediately detect any nuclear weapons tests and the whole world would at once point its finger at the transgressor. Obviously it is not the absence of control that is keeping the problem unsolved, but the absence of desire."

This same argument is being used by Thomas K. Finletter and Adlai Stevenson. The idea is that as the Russians refuse to agree to a universal treaty for inspection and control, why not agree to stop testing the H-bomb anyhow? The Russians have rejected international inspection and control since 1946 when the Baruch Plan was introduced.

What guarantee is there that every test can be discovered? It can be said that up to now, the United States has succeeded in discovering some Russian explosions, perhaps all of them, but nobody can be sure that we discovered all of them. Nobody knows. Without inspection, nobody can know.

Then Orlov said:

"... Adlai Stevenson says in his campaign speeches that he supports the proposal to ban atomic tests and argues that new ideas, which the Republicans do not have, are needed to find a solution to the disarmament problem."

"That, of course, is true—especially when we speak of ideas that could help reach agreement, for we all know how things have been so far with the representatives of the Republicans. Every time the Soviet Union agreed with American proposals, the U. S. representative promptly retracted and offered something else. Under such circumstances, it is indeed hard to find a way to disarmament, but what I would like to know is: what prevented the Democrats from suggesting new ideas heretofore, particularly with regard to disarmament?"

Actually the Baruch Proposal was made when the Democratic Harry Truman was President. At that time, there was another proposal, called the Acheson-Lilienthal Plan. The Russians gave no indication of wanting to accept that. In fact, there is nothing in the record to show that the Russians ever accepted any American proposal to limit or outlaw the atomic bomb; the fact being that the Americans insisted upon inspection and control which the Russians regularly rejected.

What have the Russians to say about the Conference at the Summit at Geneva where Bulganin and Khrushchev met with Eisenhower and Eden? A proposal was made then which could have outlawed the bomb. What became of that? What have the Russians done about the "open sky" proposal?

Orlov does not have much to say in favor of the Democrats. This is his comment:

"The leaders of the Democratic Party, judging from their statements, are disclaiming Washington's policies, but what are they offering instead? Nothing special, as far as I can see. They seem to actually favor the same course of conduct, because none of the Democratic leaders who are leveling criticism at the Republicans are inclined to condemn the mailed fist pliers or the arms drive."

This is one point of view. On the same October 6, Alexeyev, another Soviet commentator, speaking in Japanese, said:

"A majority of people have often been puzzled by the American attitude toward disarmament and a ban of nuclear weapons tests. American officials have offered a great number of proposals and schemes on these issues. The proposals and schemes, however, have been changed so often that the people, ignorant of the reasons for the changes, have often been puzzled."

"They may have the impression that America is searching for the best way to achieve disarmament. In fact, however, America has made no practical proposal, nor has it accepted any proposals during 11 years of discussion on disarmament in both general and nuclear weapons. This fact gives us the contrary impression—that America has no interest in disarmament."

Bernard Baruch will be interested in knowing that his proposal to outlaw the A-bomb is not even in the record. Baruch took his work in this connection very seriously.

CHAPTER 17

THE lights were on in our living room when I got home. As I went through the vestibule, I played "shave-and-a-haircut" on our bell. When I got to our landing, Steve was standing in the doorway. There was a look of warning on his face. He took me in his arms and gave me the least satisfactory kiss of our career.

"Bolling," he whispered. "In-side." He stepped back from me and said loudly, heartily, "How's your cousin Marie?"

"Improving," I said. "The swelling's gone down." We walked into our living room. Detective Lieutenant Bolling put a beer down on our coffee table, rose and greeted me. I was disappointed in the way he looked. He looked fine, not the least bit worried. Apparently this was a policeman without any pressing worries at all, including the capture of the Waltzer.

"The swelling's gone down?" he said to me.

"What? Oh, Cousin Marie. Yes, perceptibly. Thank you."

"Steve says she has anemia. I didn't know there was ever any swelling involved in anemia."

"You're quite right, there isn't. Cousin Marie got in a fight with her doctor and he belted her one in the eye."

"You're kidding," Bolling said.

"Yes, stop kidding, Connie," Steve said. "Bolling was in the neighborhood and he just dropped in."

"Lovely. Anytime you're in the neighborhood, Mr. Bolling, just drop in."

"Thanks."

"Any news about the Waltzer?"

"He was seen tonight in a joint in the Village, the Feather Club."

"No!" I said. "Really?"

"Yeah. We got a description of him from a Crescent pupil who was there, name of Kipp. Wendell Kipp. The bartender saw him, too, and a waiter and a couple of other people."

"What was he doing, the Waltzer?"

"Annoying some blonde."

"Any blonde," I said, "who would frequent the Feather Club could hardly be annoyed." I had to ask the question and I did, bravely. "What does the Waltzer look like?"

"Well, this Kipp didn't give much of a description. He didn't impress me as the type that ever noticed very accurately what a man looked like. Then he was still pretty upset by the slugging the Waltzer handed him. His description didn't tally very well with the other people's descriptions."

"What," I asked, "was his description?"

"He said he was a big man, powerfully built."

Steve smiled, rather proudly, pleased.

"Almost ape-like," Bolling said.

"Ape-like?" There was a trace of indignation in Steve's voice which, fortunately, Bolling missed.

"You can't believe this Kipp. He's probably sore about the Waltzer knocking him down."

"Yeah. Well, Kipp said he had a low forehead and very long arms."

Steve's indignation was boiling into anger. I spoke quickly.

"What did the other people say about him?"

"The bartender said he was an ordinary guy, dark, maybe six feet."

Steve was somewhat mollified.

"A waitress said he was good looking."

Steve was smiling again.

"Well, anyway," Bolling said, "the description doesn't help us much. But that doesn't bother me. When we round up the last of Anita Farrell's pupils, then I'll be able to name the Waltzer."

The telephone rang; Steve answered it. It was for Bolling.

The detective's back was toward me and his voice was muffled. It was too difficult to eavesdrop and I soon gave it up. But I did gather that the call was coming from Bolling's partner, Hankins, at the Crescent School of Dancing. There was some problem about who should take over somebody else's assignment.

When Bolling had got things straightened out, he turned back to us. "As I was saying, I'll be able to name the Waltzer when we round up the last of Miss Farrell's pupils."

"Yes," I said. "Of course you will, won't you?"

"Only one guy we haven't located yet. A Ralph Tolley."

Silently, I asked Heaven to be kind to Ralph Tolley; he was one of nature's noblemen.

Aloud I said, "But you'll find him soon, I'm sure."

"We're getting close. And when we get hold of this Tolley, then we'll know. We got every one of Anita Farrell's lessons accounted for except seven o'clock Wednesday."

"... the Waltzer's time. Now, like I told you before, if this Tolley is the Waltzer he won't say he was seven o'clock Wednesday. He'll pick some other time, for instance, Steve's time ... three o'clock Saturday. Then if Tolley isn't the Waltzer, Steve is."

DIET AND HEALTH

Autumn Brings Rise In Hepatitis Cases

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M.D.

WITH the approach of late autumn, we can expect to see an increase in the number of cases of infectious hepatitis.

This disease, which is caused by a virus and may be introduced by contaminated food or water, attacks the liver. Severe inflammation results and frequently there are symptoms similar to influenza and other disabling conditions.

Hepatitis may develop suddenly or gradually.

Low Fever

Symptoms usually are a low grade fever, loss of appetite, headache, fatigue, nausea, vomiting, a feeling of uneasiness, and a pain in the upper right portion of the abdomen. Stools might be light-colored, too.

Better call a doctor right away when these symptoms appear since laboratory tests are needed to definitely diagnose the illness as hepatitis.

While most victims recover after six to eight weeks of illness, the disease can at times have a serious consequence.

Largest Organ

The liver, the largest organ in your body, performs many chemical tasks. One of these functions is to secrete bile, a necessary aid to digestion.

If you are stricken with hepatitis, the liver becomes enlarged and loses some of its manufacturing ability.

The bile then seeps into the blood stream, where it is carried to all parts of the body, producing a jaundice, or yellow coloring of the skin. Sometimes, however, jaundice does not appear at all.

Bed rest and the proper diet are very important to speed your recovery.

The diet should be abundant in carbohydrate and protein and should consist primarily of fruits, fruit juices, cereals, bread, potatoes, rice, sugar—and candies.

You'll get the proteins from lean meats.

Fats should be obtained chiefly from dairy foods such as milk, cream, butter and eggs. Cottage cheese is good, too.

I suggest that you remain in bed at least three weeks after the first symptoms appear. Your doctor might advise an even longer bed rest. Not only is the rest essential because of your great fatigue, it also helps prevent any recurrences.

And once you are up and around, take it easy for quite a while. Resume your activities gradually or you'll probably have a relapse and be back in bed in no time.

SUPER ROAD AGENCY?

THE POSSIBILITY that a new federal highway agency may be formed is being talked of in Washington, D. C.

Speculation has arisen since the appointment of Bertram D. Tallamy of New York to the newly-created post of Federal Highway Administrator. Tallamy was formerly head of the New York State Thruway Authority.

The creation of the Federal Highway Administrator post by the recent session of Congress was felt to show congressional doubt that the existing Bureau of Public Roads could handle the huge new $32.5 billion, 13-year highway program in addition to its present duties. Opposition came from state highway officials and highway user organizations.

Now it appears that even with the Tallamy appointment there will be no disturbance of the working arrangements of the bureau with state highway departments.

But there may be some changes in the future, such as transferring the bureau to some new authority.

Sen. Albert Gore, Tennessee Democrat, has talked of creating an independent agency, such as a bipartisan federal highway commission, to handle the entire highway program.

What will be the reaction of state highway departments, or of those who do not want another federal bureau, to this proposal, remains to be seen. It may raise an interesting issue in the coming session of Congress.

REFUSAL OF REASON

SELDOM has free enterprise had such a good case as in its current battle in the Italian parliament over an oil exploration law.

Yet for political reasons a law aimed at giving a virtual oil exploration monopoly to the state-owned group ENI has a good chance of passing. It has already been approved by the lower house and awaits action by the upper house.

On a logical basis the state-owned ENI shouldn't have a chance. For it has had a virtual monopoly for several years, especially in Italy's Po Valley, and has come up with practically no oil.

The free oil companies of the rest of the world are convinced there is oil in Italy and want a chance to explore there. But the dominance of socialistic thinking in the Italian parliament has practically ruled out this alternative.

The island of Sicily, off the southwest "toe" of Italy, went about the matter in different fashion. A semi-autonomous part of Italy, the island in 1950 enacted a local oil law encouraging competitive oil exploration. One company has already started heavy production and others have found promising indications of oil and gas.

The tragedy of the proposed legislation is that Italy, with her millions of poor and her stagnant economy, could well use the boost of an important oil find.

OIL PLENTIFUL

GASOLINE prices are weakening in some areas. Refiners and distributors have uncommonly large stocks of the motor fuel, following a Summer of record vacation travel.

This leaves no doubt that U. S. production, plus imports, is more than sufficient for the country's needs. The Suez crisis which once raised the fear that the U. S. would be compelled to step up output to aid Europe, is being teetered along with no current indication that American oil will be needed.

Producing states now find it necessary to decide whether to curtail domestic production further. Texas, the largest producing state—which accounts for nearly 50 per cent of domestic output—has already ordered sharp cutbacks in crude production. It is considering cutting allowances further next month in an effort to bring stocks above ground back to normal.

The domestic oil industry has become efficient in self-regulation to keep prices firm. This regulation is prolonging the life of producing sands. There is little doubt today that petroleum, principal source of energy, will be kept in adequate production until the dawn of the grand new atomic age, when energy will be obtained more cheaply.

George E. Sokolsky's

These Days

On October 6, Konstantin Orlov, commentator in English to North America, on the Moscow Radio, said:

"... Spokesmen for the Republican administration assert that they stand for disarmament, if such measures can be controlled—but why, in that case, do they spurn the Soviet Union's proposal to prohibit by agreement the testing of nuclear weapons which it is easy to keep tabs on, even now, without waiting for any elaborate system of control?"

"To check up on the fulfillment of such an agreement is a simple matter, because instruments can immediately detect any nuclear weapons tests and the whole world would at once point its finger at the transgressor. Obviously it is not the absence of control that is keeping the problem unsolved, but the absence of desire."

This same argument is being used by Thomas K. Finletter and Adlai Stevenson. The idea is that as the Russians refuse to agree to a universal treaty for inspection and control, why not agree to stop testing the H-bomb anyhow? The Russians have rejected international inspection and control since 1946 when the Baruch Plan was introduced.

What guarantee is there that every test can be discovered? It can be said that up to now, the United States has succeeded in discovering some Russian explosions, perhaps all of them, but nobody can be sure that we discovered all of them. Nobody knows. Without inspection, nobody can know.

Then Orlov said:

"... Adlai Stevenson says in his campaign speeches that he supports the proposal to ban atomic tests and argues that new ideas, which the Republicans do not have, are needed to find a solution to the disarmament problem."

"That, of course, is true—especially when we speak of ideas that could help reach agreement, for we all know how things have been so far with the representatives of the Republicans. Every time the Soviet Union agreed with American proposals, the U. S. representative promptly retracted and offered something else. Under such circumstances, it is indeed hard to find a way to disarmament, but what I would like to know is: what prevented the Democrats from suggesting new ideas heretofore, particularly with regard to disarmament?"

Actually the Baruch Proposal was made when the Democratic Harry Truman was President. At that time, there was another proposal, called the Acheson-Lilienthal Plan. The Russians gave no indication of wanting to accept that. In fact, there is nothing in the record to show that the Russians ever accepted any American proposal to limit or outlaw the atomic bomb; the fact being that the Americans insisted upon inspection and control which the Russians regularly rejected.

What have the Russians to say about the Conference at the Summit at Geneva where Bulganin and Khrushchev met with Eisenhower and Eden? A proposal was made then which could have outlawed the bomb. What became of that? What have the Russians done about the "open sky" proposal?

Orlov does not have much to say in favor of the Democrats. This is his comment:

"The leaders of the Democratic Party, judging from their statements, are disclaiming Washington's policies, but what are they offering instead? Nothing special, as far as I can see. They seem to actually favor the same course of conduct, because none of the Democratic leaders who are leveling criticism at the Republicans are inclined to condemn the mailed fist policy of the arms drive."

This is one point of view. On the same October 6, Alexeyev, another Soviet commentator, speaking in Japanese, said:

"A majority of people have often been puzzled by the American attitude toward disarmament and a ban on nuclear weapons tests. American officials have offered a great number of proposals and schemes on these issues. The proposals and schemes, however, have been changed so often that the people, ignorant of the reasons for the changes, have often been puzzled."

They may have the impression that America is searching for the best way to achieve disarmament. In fact, however, America has made no practical proposal, nor has it accepted any proposals during 11 years of discussion on disarmament in both general and nuclear weapons. This fact gives us the contrary impression—that America has no interest in disarmament."

Bernard Baruch will be interested in knowing that his proposal to outlaw the A-bomb is not even in the record. Baruch took his work in this connection very seriously.

DIET AND HEALTH

Autumn Brings Rise In Hepatitis Cases

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M.D.

WITH the approach of late autumn, we can expect to see an increase in the number of cases of infectious hepatitis.

This disease, which is caused by a virus and may be introduced by contaminated food or water, attacks the liver. Severe inflammation results and frequently there are symptoms similar to influenza and other disabling conditions.

Hepatitis may develop suddenly or gradually.

Low Fever
Symptoms usually are a low grade fever, loss of appetite, headache, fatigue, nausea, vomiting, a feeling of uneasiness, and a pain in the upper right portion of the abdomen. Stools might be light-colored, too.

Better call a doctor right away when these symptoms appear since laboratory tests are needed to definitely diagnose the illness as hepatitis.

While most victims recover after six to eight weeks of illness, the disease can at times have a serious consequence.

Largest Organ
The liver, the largest organ in your body, performs many chemical tasks. One of these functions is to secrete bile, a necessary aid to digestion.

If you are stricken with hepatitis, the liver becomes enlarged and loses some of its manufacturing ability.

The bile then seeps into the blood stream, where it is carried to all parts of the body, producing a jaundice, or yellow coloring of the skin. Sometimes, however, jaundice does not appear at all.

Bed rest and the proper diet are very important to speed your recovery.

The diet should be abundant in carbohydrate and protein and should consist primarily of fruits, fruit juices, cereals, bread, potatoes, rice, sugar—and candies.

You'll get the proteins from lean meats.

Dairy Foods
Fats should be obtained chiefly from dairy foods such as milk, cream, butter and eggs. Cottage cheese is good, too.

I suggest that you remain in bed at least three weeks after the first symptoms appear. Your doctor might advise an even longer bed rest. Not only is the rest essential because of your great fatigue, it also helps prevent any recurrences.

And once you are up and around, take it easy for quite a while. Resume your activities gradually or you'll probably have a relapse and be back in bed in no time.

QUESTION AND ANSWER
D. A.: My husband had syphilis about five years ago. Would it be wise to have another child now?

Answer: If your husband is completely cured, it should not interfere with your having another baby.

Do You Know Your Social Security Law?

BY C. C. DABBY
Columbus Manager
Social Security District

In the first article of this series I outlined the most important changes in the old-age and survivors insurance program brought about by the 1956 amendments to the social security law. Today, I shall discuss the kinds of work which are brought under social security for the first time as of January 1, 1956.

For taxable years after 1955, persons who work for themselves — alone or in partnership — as lawyers, dentists, chiropractors, veterinarians, naturopaths, osteopaths, and optometrists, started building old-age and survivors insurance protection for themselves and their families on the same basis as self-employed persons previously covered by the law. It is estimated that about 200,000 professional people are affected by this change in the social security law.

Lawyers make up the largest number of these newly-covered self-employed professionals. As long ago as 1948, it was estimated that 140,000 out of the probably 170,000 lawyers in the United States were self-employed.

Most of them are already familiar with the insurance provisions of social security. They have had occasion to observe and study it in connection with the affairs of their clients.

MOREOVER, because of the close relationship between legal practice and fields such as business management, real estate, finance, and politics, many lawyers had moved into other lines of work covered by social security before 1956.

A great many of them came under social security as employees of other lawyers; others acquired military wage credits under social security during active service with the Armed Forces.

In fact, it is estimated that at least 30 percent of all presently self-employed lawyers, at one time or another, have accumulated some earnings credits under the old-age and survivors insurance program. To these lawyers, in particular, the extension of coverage is of marked importance.

The social security credits they have built up would have steadily declined in benefit value in the years ahead; in the case of many young lawyers, they would eventually have disappeared altogether.

Also brought under social security as of January 1, 1956, are an estimated 78,000 dentists actively engaged in private practice. This protection should be of special importance to a young dentist who is head of a family.

Because of the length of time required to complete his professional training, his earning capacity in many cases does not commence as early in life as that of the average non-professional individual. Moreover, in starting his practice, he must furnish his office with expensive equipment and thereafter go through a period of low income before he is able to realize a reasonable return from his practice.

IF HE HAS a wife and family, he is in need of the survivorship protection social security affords to a young widow and minor children during those years.

In my next article I shall explain the provision in the amended law which permits self-employed professionals and others brought under social security this year to disregard their years of non-coverage after 1950 in acquiring an insured status.

About 22 per cent of U. S. spending units (families and single people) had incomes from $5,000 to $7,500 in 1955.

Ohio Aviation Board Seeks Airstrips At State Parks

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—Within a few years you will be able to fly to one-half dozen or more state recreation areas and conservancy districts, if plans of the Ohio Aviation Board materialize.

The board has financed building two grassy airstrips and is completing plans for a third which is destined to be ready by next spring.

In addition, says board Director C. E. A. Brown, four more landing strips will be built in the next two or three years.

The board wants to make it easier for the small plane pilot to visit a state lake or park. Says Brown:

"Ohio's recreation areas will be only four hours by air from half of the country's large population areas with the availability of runways at our parks and lakes."

Funds to build the airstrip will come from license fees which the board may use. Brown said enough funds are on hand now to build all the airstrips planned for the next few years.

The first airstrip was built several years ago at the Pleasant Hill Reservoir area about 15 miles southeast of Mansfield.

"It turned out to be so successful that we decided to build more," Brown said.

The reservoir is operated by the Muskingum Watershed Conservancy District.

A second strip was built at the Delaware Reservoir in Delaware County. It was in limited use this summer and will be opened officially next spring. The state partly controls lands around this reservoir.

The board had to buy land for the airstrip it plans for Kiser Lake in Champaign County. The state owns the lake but did not have land suitable for a landing strip.

The board is considering a half dozen possible sites for four other airstrips. They include:

Rocky Fork Lake in Highland County, which also is a state park. Seneca Lake in Guernsey County, which belongs to the Muskingum conservancy district.

Indian Lake in Logan County, a state recreational area.

Findlay Lake, recently built in Lorain County.

Lake St. Marys in Mercer and Auglaize counties.

The big state beach area at East Harbor in Ottawa County.

Successful sites will be those that can be converted into landing strips the easiest, Brown said. The board wants to keep complete costs for each strip below $6,000.

None of the airstrips will compete with private airports. There will be no landing fees, Brown said.

None of the strips will be paved and there will be no gasoline facilities or hangars.

Housewives with a good memory for bargains may think the calendar has been turned back a year when the visit their favorite meat counters this week-end.

The reason is that pork will be featured, just as it was a year ago when pig products were almost a glut on the market. Government experts say the supply of porkers being marketed will be seasonally heavy in late November and early December, although somewhat below 1955 levels.

Pork loins, pork chops and roast pork all are scheduled for feature billing. Prices are down from 2 to 10 cents in most areas.

Ham, lamb and chicken also will be getting a big play from bargain hunters. Beef, for the most part, was still a bit high in most places.

Vegetable and fruit counters generally are expected to show little change from last week.

Cabbage, cauliflower and squash all are at the top of the bargain list. In sections where nearby crops still are available, onions, potatoes and beets also are extremely attractive in price.

Good buys also are reported for brussels sprouts, carrots, celery, endive and escarole.

Some varieties of apples are abundant, and therefore cheap, but the popular eating types are reported too expensive to be considered a good bargain.

Boy Uses Gum On Stick To Steal $500

DETROIT (AP)—A 16-year-old boy was accused today of sticking a wad of chewing gum on the end of a stick and flogging 10 $50 bills from a bank drawer through the barred window of the teller's cage.

Raymond L. Siebert of Detroit, a Negro, stood mute when arraigned before Federal Judge Ralph M. Freeman Thursday on a charge of violating the Federal Juvenile Act.

George E. Woods, chief assistant U.S. attorney, quoted the youth as saying, "I just can't resist it when I see money laying around." Woods said Siebert tricked the woman teller into leaving the cage by asking her to check on a 50-cent service charge levied against his account.

The teller remembered the boy's unexplained disappearance when she discovered the shortage at the end of the day.

An FBI agent said the loot was found at the boy's home.

Do You Know Your Social Security Law?

BY C. C. DABRY
Columbus Manager
Social Security District

In the first article of this series I outlined the most important changes in the old-age and survivors insurance program brought about by the 1956 amendments to the social security law. Today, I shall discuss the kinds of work which are brought under social security for the first time as of January 1, 1956.

For taxable years after 1955, persons who work for themselves — alone or in partnership — as lawyers, dentists, chiropractors, veterinarians, naturopaths, osteopaths, and optometrists, started building old-age and survivors insurance protection for themselves and their families on the same basis as self-employed persons previously covered by the law. Also brought under social security as of January 1, 1956, are an estimated 78,000 dentists actively engaged in private practice. This protection should be of special importance to a young dentist who is head of a family.

About 22 per cent of U. S. spending units (families and single people) had incomes from $5,000 to $7,500 in 1955.

"Ohio's recreation areas will be only four hours by air from half of the country's large population areas with the availability of runways at our parks and lakes."

Bender Raps Lausche On Phone Strike

COLUMBUS, Ohio (P)—Gov. Frank J. Lausche's announced intention to call a special legislative session to consider the telephone strike situation in Portsmouth was termed "meaningless" and "futile" today by Sen. George H. Bender (R-Ohio).

Lausche, Bender's Democratic opponent for the senate in Tuesday's election, has stated he will call an emergency session for Nov. 9, but no official summons has been issued.

Bender said the U. S. Supreme Court has already ruled that a state law prohibiting strikes against public utilities and providing for compulsory arbitration after a collective bargaining stalemate is invalid because it conflicts with the National Labor Relations Act.

"This case was decided on Feb. 26, 1951," Bender said in a prepared statement here, "and dealt directly with the proposal which Gov. Lausche is now making to the state legislature of Ohio. The decision of the supreme court means that the governor's proposal is meaningless and futile."

Bender said Lausche is simply trying "to get himself off the spot." He said there is "no reason why the situation should have been allowed to deteriorate to this point. If my opponent for the senate had acted promptly, there would have been no prolonged strike."

Ohio Coal Output Showing Increase

COLUMBUS (P)—Coal production in Ohio during the second quarter of 1956 amounted to 9.4 million tons, an increase of about 15 per cent over the same quarter last year, Margaret A. Mahoney, state industrial relations director, reported.

Mine employment for the quarter was up nine per cent from a year ago and the payroll increased by 30 per cent.

The payroll during this year's second quarter was up five per cent over the first quarter, Miss Mahoney said, but there was little change in employment or output.

Boy Uses Gum On Stick To Steal $500

DETROIT (P)—A 16-year-old boy was accused today of sticking a wad of chewing gum on the end of a stick and fishing 10 $50 bills from a bank drawer through the barred window of the teller's cage.

Raymond L. Siebert of Detroit, a Negro, stood mute when arraigned before Federal Judge Ralph M. Freeman Thursday on a charge of violating the Federal Juvenile Act.

George E. Woods, chief assistant U.S. attorney, quoted the youth as saying, "I just can't resist it when I see money laying around."

Woods said Siebert tricked the woman teller into leaving the cage by asking her to check on a 50-cent service charge levied against his account.

The teller remembered the boy's unexplained disappearance when she discovered the shortage at the end of the day.

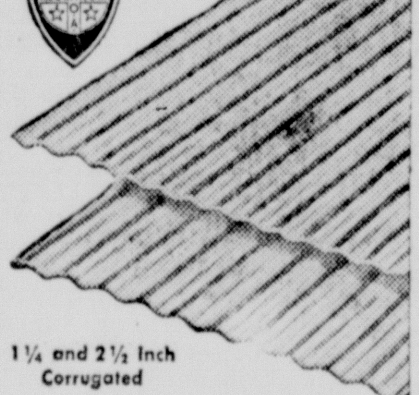

An FBI agent said the loot was found at the boy's home.

The New Jersey turnpike required 30 million gallons of asphalt.

IT'S the LAW

This is another in a series of articles prepared by the Pickaway County Bar Association and printed by The Herald as a public service. The articles are not intended to answer the legal problems of any specific individual. And names, whenever used, are fictitious. Purpose of the series is merely to outline the law that applies, with variations, in common types of litigation.

Finder Keeps Lost Article If Owner Can't Be Located

Percy Amorle was a chimney sweep who lived a grimy uneventful life in London before George Washington was born. One day, however, he found a diamond ring in the street on his way home after sweeping the chimney of the Duke of Oldcastle's palace and his name has plagued first year law students ever since.

Chimney sweeps were poor, and Percy felt that anyone who could lose a diamond ring in the street wouldn't care anyway, so he went straight to the shop of Delamire the jeweler. Delamire wasn't in, but Alec, his assistant, was.

Alec was a bright young man eager to get ahead, but he didn't care how he did it. He took Percy's ring into the back room to get a better look at it through his jeweler's glass and, while he was there, he did a good job on it with a chisel. When he brought the ring back he told Percy it was of little value and it wasn't the diamond was gone.

Percy wasn't quite the sucker Alec thought he was thought. He got a lawyer and sued Alec, and Delamire too. At the trial, the jeweler and his apprentice said that Percy did not own the ring, he had only found it and had no better right to it than themselves, or any one else, for that matter.

BUT THE judge decided that they would have to give the diamond back to Percy because "the finder of a lost article has the right to hold it against the whole world except the true owner."

The principal is as valid today in Ohio as it was in England over 200 years ago, although there is more to it than that.

For instance, judges find a difference between lost and mislaid property. Mislaid property is that which is deliberately placed somewhere, the owner afterward forgetting where he put it. Lost property is property with which the owner casually and thoughtlessly parts company.

A finder must leave mislaid property with the owner of the place where he found the article so that when the true owner finally remembers where he put it, he can come back and get it.

When the article is lost, though, the finder can take it, and do what he wants with it, with this restriction—he must make a reasonable attempt to find the true owner. If he finds the owner he must give it back.

He has no right to reward, although he is entitled to be repaid for his expense in locating the owner. If the finder sells the article, he may be required to give the money to the owner if he appears later, even though he had tried hard to find him.

But the principle remains—you can keep that $20 bill you found on the street corner the other day and the whole world can't take it from you except the true owner. (The Internal Revenue Department will probably want some of it for taxes, too.)

American Flag Is Planted At South Pole By Admiral

By DON GUY

SOUTH POLE (AP)—The flag of the United States was raised over the South Pole Wednesday.

Lt. Comdr. Conrad S. Shinn of Spray, N. C., making the first landing on the bottom of the world, brought his 25-ton C47 down on the rough, windblown snow to a safe landing on aluminum skis.

Circling overhead in a Globemaster, I saw Rear Adm. George Dufek, Operation Deepfreeze commander, step out in his fur-hooded parka, walk away from the plane's slipstream and plant the U. S. flag in the snow.

Not since Robert Falcon Scott of Great Britain and his four companions struggled here man-hauling their sledges on Jan. 17, 1912, was human foot been placed on the polar surface. All five died on the return trip, their will to survive broken because Ronald Amundsen of Norway beat them to the prize a few weeks earlier.

The temperature here is 58 degrees below zero.

We are headed back to the ice strip on McMurdo Sound, 800 miles away.

Besides Admiral Dufek and Pilot Shinn, those aboard included Navigator Leut. Richard Swadener of Elkhart, Ind.

The pole landing was a crucial test of Admiral Dufek's strategy for building a base station at the pole, one of five outposts to be built for U. S. scientists to make observations during International Geophysical (IGY) year, the IGY cooperative program of world wide observations by scientists of nearly 50 nations started July 1956.

This Is What District Vets Want To Know

(Veterans who have a question of interest to ex-servicemen should pass it along to Pickaway County Veterans Service Officer Jim Shea. His office is in the basement of the Court House in Circleville.)

Q—I do not quite understand this new Veterans Survivor Benefits Act. Can you explain it?

A—It is impossible to explain this new law in this column. It is too complicated. I can state that it is effective on Jan. 1, 1957, and that it will effect all beneficiaries of veterans who died as a result of a service connected reason. The minimum payment under this law to a widow is $122.00, which can vary depending upon the rank of her husband, and his length of service. I suggest that beneficiaries make no decision regarding their intentions on this law until they have discussed very carefully with me, all the different points which should be considered.

Q—Are Widows of World War I veterans entitled to the increase under this new law?

A—All beneficiaries, widows, children, and dependent parents of veterans whose death was a result of their service, (service connected) are eligible under this new law, so long as the death occurred prior to Jan. 1, 1957.

Q—Is there a deadline date for making my decision with regards to this new law?

A—There is no deadline date. However, if you make your decision prior to July 1, 1957, it will date back to Jan. 1, 1957. If you make your decision after July 1, 1957, it will be effective the date you make the decision.

Q—What is the War Orphans' Education program?

O'Neill, DiSalle Scheduled Before Cleveland City Club

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Ohio's two candidates for governor appear in the same political arena today and a vice presidential candidate makes a whistle stop tour into the state.

Democrat Michael V. DiSalle and Republican C. William O'Neill, who are seeking the governorship, packed their verbal ammunition for a joint appearance at the City Club in Cleveland.

The engagement was not exactly a debate. After each candidate's speech the floor was open for questions from the audience, directed at either or both of the candidates.

During the day, President Eisenhower's running mate, Richard M. Nixon, rode his 13-car campaign train through six congressional districts. Entering the state at Marietta, the train wandered northward with speech stops in Athens, Chillicothe, Gallion and Mansfield.

Tonight Nixon will speak at a rally in Canton, and then head back to Washington.

DiSalle and Gov. Frank J. Lausche, who is seeking to unseat Republican Sen. George H. Bender, both were present Friday noon for the Cleveland appearance of Adlai Stevenson.

The Democratic presidential candidate spoke warmly of both of them, declaring Lausche's "tradition of good state government will be continued brilliantly by my good friend Mike DiSalle."

He also predicted Lausche would gain the Senate seat, adding that "it's about time Ohio got a new senator."

Bender was campaigning in northern Ohio. His Cleveland office and women whose parents (World War I, World War II, and Korean veterans) died of injuries or disease resulting from their military service.

Q—What is the first step in applying for schooling under this program?

A—Parents or guardians of persons interested in schooling should first make application with the VA. If the VA finds the basic eligibility requirements are met, the application will be approved, provisionally.

Ohio Mental Patient List Showing Decline In Number

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—There are fewer persons in Ohio's mental hospitals than there have been for the last 2½ years, the department of mental hygiene and correction said today.

Dr. C. Earl Albrecht, acting director, said today's total is 26,663, which is 658 fewer than the all time high reached July 1, 1955, and a bit lower than the total 2½ years ago.

The decrease in patients in hospitals came despite a record high admission rate of more than 10,000 a year, Dr. Albrecht said.

He attributed the drop to three factors: Since July 1, 1955, the department has been able to increase the number of persons treating patients by 10 per cent.

Use of tranquilizing drugs has been successful.

The number of social service workers in Ohio's mental hygiene program has increased by nearly 40 per cent since July 1, 1955. This means that patients who leave the hospital are less likely to return. Before they leave a hospital they are prepared for a return to family life.

Dr. Albrecht said the decline in the number of persons in mental hospitals has continued for the last 16 months. He added:

"We confidently anticipate that as the number of treatment and social service personnel continues to grow and as the new treatment facilities provided by the department's tremendous building program are put to use, this trend will be considerably accelerated in the years ahead."

DiSalle Pledges Strip Mine Drive

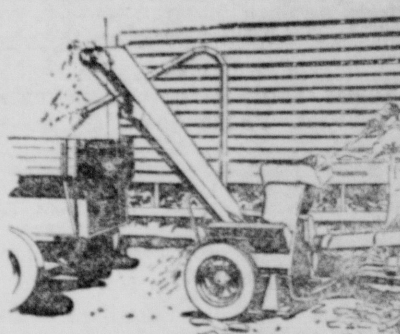

TOLEDO (AP)—Michael DiSalle, Democratic candidate for governor, has pledged vigorous enforcement of Ohio's strip mining laws.

"The present strip mining laws are the toughest in Ohio's history," DiSalle said. "We should give these laws a chance to operate with proper enforcement before pressing for major changes. If the laws prove inadequate, we can then strengthen them further."

He issued a statement saying "we are in a world crisis. There are two alternatives before mankind. We can plunge recklessly towards a new era of world wide hatreds which may destroy civilization utterly. Or we may continue the desperate struggle in which our government is the leader to re-establish peace and make new wars impossible."

One of Bender's campaign backers spoke in Cleveland Friday night—George M. Humphrey, secretary of the treasury. He spoke first at a business convention and later at a political rally.

Most of his prepared address was on fiscal matters, but he made brief changes in the talk to discuss the international situation.

In a jibe apparently aimed at Stevenson, he said there is "no place for the novice or the ill informed" in the leadership of the country.

"Criticism indiscriminately tossed out carelessly for political ends may well seriously injure the best interests of our country," said Humphrey.

Mediator Eyes Newsmen's Strike

CLEVELAND (AP)—A federal mediator today summoned both sides to a new negotiating session aimed at settling a strike which touched off a chain of events ending in a shutdown of Cleveland's three large daily newspapers.

A membership meeting also was called today by the Cleveland Newspaper Guild to firm up plans for publishing its own newspaper, the Cleveland Reporter, for the duration of the strike.

American Flag Is Planted At South Pole By Admiral

By DON GUY

SOUTH POLE (AP)—The flag of the United States was raised over the South Pole Wednesday.

The next stop in the assault, if not conquest of the pole for a picked eight-man navy task force is to land and set up survival shelters. After that, 16 more men will be landed and a massive air-drop of 500 tons of equipment will be made by relays of air force Globemasters from McMurdo.

There was no sign today of the 10,000 pounds of fuel oil and the bomb shaped automatic weather station I saw dropped on the pole last Friday. However, scientists believe unknown depths to the polar ice cap are built up by condensation like frost in a refrigerator. Even a few days might be enough to conceal with frost anything dropped in this world of utter whiteness.

Rosi Halts Brown In Eighth Round

WASHINGTON (AP) — Paolo Rosi of the Bronx has demonstrated once again that his right fist packs some fireworks.

The balding 28-year-old immigrant splintered Henry (Toothpick) Brown in the eighth round of a nationally televised bout Friday night. The explosion earned him consideration for a place among the ranking lightweight.

The 23-year-old Philadelphia 1954 hadn't lost a fight since 1951 until he got in the way of Rosi's gloves. In two previous appearances this year he scored first-round knockouts.

Michael and Homer Marshman, Cleveland attorney and only other stockholder in the new corporation, have applied for 1957 dates from the Ohio Racing Commission and will embark on a large scale implementation program as soon as the application is approved.

The new track, as yet unnamed, straddles the Summit and Cuyahoga County lines between Cleveland and Akron and is eight miles west of Grandview whose attendance and mutual handle figures have increased 25 and 30 per cent respectively since Michael took over in 1955.

Michael and Marshman have applied for 1957 dates beginning Aug. 23 and continuing through Oct. 12. If approved, this will provide a full harness racing circuit for northern Ohio from mid-May to mid-October. Painesville Raceway customarily opens the season in May with Grandview taking over around the first of July. The new track would follow Grandview.

"I am interested in giving the people of Ohio the best possible type of harness racing without regard to cost," Michael said.

"That's the policy I have followed at Grandview and its acceptance in such fine fashion by the racing public leads me to believe that it is the only logical policy to be pursued. I promise the same kind of operation at the new plant because Ohio is a state rich in harness racing tradition and deserves only the very best."

The land which Michael and Marshman, secretary-treasurer of the corporation, purchased for $400,000 last week, consists of 55 acres upon which are located a grandstand and a quarter mile automobile track.

Michael said the grandstand, which seats 2,200 and is in good condition, would be retained and expanded. The automobile track, however, will be removed and a completely new half mile harness racing track constructed. A modern lighting system will be installed and new barns built.

Rosi Halts Brown In Eighth Round

WASHINGTON (AP) - Paolo Rosi of the Bronx has demonstrated once again that his right fist packs some fireworks.

The balding 28-year-old immi-grant splintered Henry (Toothpick) Brown in the eighth round of a nationally televised bout Friday night. The explosion earned him consideration for a place among the ranking lightweights.

The 23-year-old Philadelphia Toothpick hadn't lost a fight since 1954 until he got in the way of Rosi's gloves. In two previous ap-pearances this year he scored first-round knockouts.

Michael and Homer Marshman, Cleveland attorney and only other stockholder in the new corporation, have applied for 1957 dates from the Ohio Racing Commission and will embark on a large scale im-provement program as soon as the application is approved.

The new track, as yet unnamed, straddles the Summit and Cuya-hoga County lines between Clevel-land and Akron and is eight miles west of Grandview whose attend-ance and mutual handle figures have increased 25 and 30 per cent respectively since Michael took over in 1955.

Michael and Marshman have ap-plied for 1957 dates beginning Aug. 23 and continuing through Oct. 12. If approved, this will provide a full

Littler Falters In Pomona Meet

CHINO, Calif. (AP) - Defending champion Gene Littler of San Di-ego was five strokes off the pace today as the Pomona Valley open golf tournament went into its second round.

Touring the Los Serranos Coun-try Club in six-under-par 66 to tie for first place Friday were former amateur champion Billy Max-well, Odessa, Tex.; George Bing-ham, Kansas City, Mo., and Dick Knight, Omaha, Neb.

Next with 67 were Ellsworth Vines, Palm Springs, Calif.; Har-ry Dee, Scarsdale, N. Y.; Bill Cas-per, San Diego, and Ed Joseph, Tu-lare, Calif.

Dodgers Explode For Ninth Win

OSAKA, Japan (AP) - The Brooklyn Dodgers exploded for seven runs in a big eighth inning rally to smother the Japan All-Stars 14-7 before 60,000 today.

Until the eighth the game had been tightly played and the All-Stars had tied the count at 7-7 in the seventh on a two-run homer by Mitsuhiko Sugiyama, outfielder for the Nankai Hawks.

Today's win gave the Dodgers a 9-2 record against Japanese teams with one game ending in a tie.

Cleveland Area May Get Another Harness Race Track

COLUMBUS-Walter J. Michael, Bucyrus industrialist whose man-agerial magic transformed Grand-view Oval in two brief years from a tottering enterprise into Ohio's best known harness racing track, is preparing to expand his Stand-ardbred operation.

Michael has been identified as president of Penn-Ohio Downs, Inc., which has purchased Sportsman's Park, an automobile racing track located on State Route 8, 15 miles south of Cleveland, and plans to convert it into a modern harness racing plant.

Michael and Homer Marshman, Cleveland attorney and only other stockholder in the new corporation, have applied for 1957 dates from the Ohio Racing Commission and will embark on a large scale im-provement program as soon as the application is approved.

2 World Records Claimed By U.S. Olympic Trackmen

LOS ANGELES (AP) - Two new world records were pointed to-ward official recognition today, and the selections committee of Uncle Sam's powerful Olympic Games track and field team breathed easier after solving a few problems in athletic person-nel.

Head coach Jim Kelly was hap-py after watching his athletes in their final tuneup on home soil before heading for the games in Australia next week.

The outstanding performances Thursday:

A shot put—63 feet 2 inches—by the world king of the event, Parry O'Brien. This shattered his official record of 60 feet 10 inches.

A mile relay by Charley Jenk-ins, Lou Spurrier, Tom Courtney and Lou Jones that cracked the existing world mark, and the time of the second-place team which also eclipsed the record.

The winning time was 3:07.3. The second team of Arnie Sowell, Josh Cubreath, Glenn Davis and Eddie Southern did it in 3:08.1.

The existing record is 3:08.8, set in 1952 in London by Gene Cole, J. W. Mashburn, Reggie Pearman and Mal Whitfield.

Jim Graham, Oklahoma A&M pole vaulter, relieved the selection committee of a ticklish problem when he voluntarily withdrew from the team, to be replaced by Bob Gutovskiy of Occidental, the alternate. Graham has been trou-bled by an ankle injury. Kelly called his action "one of the finest demonstrations of sportsmanship" in his memory.

CHS Gridders Beat Down Delaware Rally, Win 20-13

By PAUL SMALLWOOD
Herald Sports Editor

After holding a 20 to 7 lead at the end of the first half, the Circleville High School Tigers had to go all out in the last two quarters to preserve a 20-13 victory over Delaware in a homecoming game last night on the local gridiron.

Showing determination and moving with precision in the final home game of the season, the Tigers racked up three quick touchdowns in the first two periods of play. However the CHS offensive punch hit a roadblock in the second half as a fired up Delaware crew stormed back in the third quarter for one TD and threatened again in the fourth stanza, while holding the locals scoreless.

With only about five minutes remaining in the game, Tiger fans breathed a sigh of relief when Delaware fumbled on the CHS two yard line, the locals recovering. A few moments later the Tigers halted another Delaware drive when the visitors failed to get the necessary yardage for a first down on the red and black 36 yard stripe. The Tigers scored one of their three touchdowns in the first stanza and turned on the steam in the second period to account for the other two.

LEFT HALFBACK Don McClarren tallied first for the Tigers when he crashed into the end zone from three yards out. The second CHS TD was the result of a perfect pitch from quarterback Mike Hosler to end Fred Garner, good for 54 yards and six points.

The third and final Tiger score was accounted for by Hosler who raced 28 yards to paydirt on an option-keep play around his own right end.

Delaware's scoring was handled by speedy halfback Jim Foutz. His first trip to the goal line was a 66 yard off-tackle slant in the second quarter. In the third period, he raced around his own left end, picked up his interference and scampered 53 yards to the Circleville end zone.

Sparked by the hard-running of right half Walt Arledge, the Tigers moved 60 yards in 11 plays for their first touchdown. The quick-hitting halfback picked up 33 yards in five carries, with McClarren going the final three yards for the score. Norton Barnes kick for extra point was blocked and the CHS 11 led 6 to 0.

With neither team able to score for the remainder of the first period, the Tigers opened up in the second quarter when end T. D. Van Camp crashed through the Delaware line and smeared an enemy back on a fourth down pass attempt.

On the next play, Hosler faded back to his own 40, spotted end Fred Garner in the open and fired a long pass which Garner gathered in on the 20. Taking the aerial without missing a stride, the CHS end crossed the goal line untouched.

THIS TIME Barnes' kick split the uprights and Circleville commanded a 13-0 lead. The visitors, still full of fight, came roaring back with vengeance. On the first play after the kickoff, Foutz tucked the pigskin under his arm and rambled to the end zone 66 yards away. Gale's placement was good and the CHS margin was trimmed 20 to 7.

Apparently aroused by Foutz's long run, the Tigers took the following kickoff and marched 53 yards in six plays to register six more points. The drive was climaxed by Hosler, who faked a pitchout, reversed his field and traveled on into the end zone standing up.

With time running out in the first half, Circleville almost got another touchdown when defensive halfback Bill Johnson intercepted a Delaware pass on his own 25 and raced back to the opponents' 35 before he was brought down by the last two defenders.

The visitors controlled the pigskin most of the second half, piling up eight first downs while holding the Tigers to four. The only score in the last half came when halfback Foutz circled his own left end and moved 55 yards for a touchdown. The try for point was no good and the score remained Circleville 20, Delaware 13.

The Delaware men staged a final thrust in the fourth quarter which carried to the CHS two yard line. However, the Tiger line stiffened at this point and the opponents fumbled on the next play, Circleville recovering.

UNABLE to move the ball for a first down, Hosler got off a booming quick kick which rolled to the Delaware 42 yard line.

Delaware's final bid for a touchdown was stopped on the Tiger 36 when their fourth and one try for a first down was stopped cold. The game ended a few seconds later with the Tigers in possession of the ball.

Coaches Steve Brudzinski and Tom Bennett said they were pleased with the Tiger's first half showing but said they were disappointed with the boys' second half let-down.

The Tigers' record now stands at two wins, one tie and five losses. Next Friday they travel to Washington, C. H. for an annual duel with the Blue Lions.

Only Global War To Halt Olympic Test

MELBOURNE (AP) — The chief executive officer of the Melbourne Olympic Games said today that despite the developing crisis in Hungary and the Middle East "the games will go on unless there is a world war."

Lt. Gen. Sir William Bridgeford said that "we intend to go through with the show and make it an outstanding success. We have spared no effort to make it so." The games open Nov. 22.

He termed it "unfortunate" that the events in the Middle East and Hungary should be taking place with the games so close.

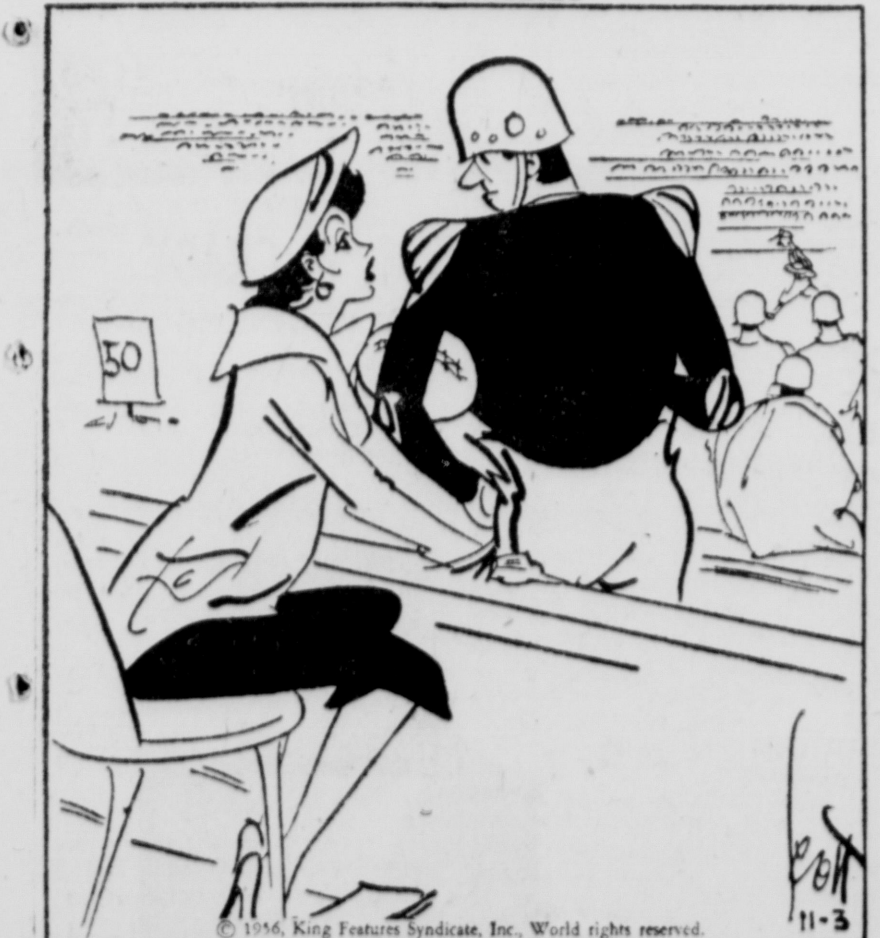

"Maybe the athletes of the world will set an example for others to follow," he said.

Asked if he expected any incidents when the Hungarian and Russian teams arrive he replied: "I hope not. I intend to treat every delegation alike no matter where they come from."

Bridgeford said he had heard nothing further about the missing Russian ship Gruzia which has aboard a number of Russian, Hungarians, Czechs and one Bulgarian for the games.

The Gruzia has not been heard from since it left Odessa Oct. 8 and no one seems to have a definite report on her whereabouts. There have been conflicting reports that she may dock here on Tuesday and another that she has been ordered back to Odessa.
